ANNIE MULLINS DEATH TRIAL

TWO BOYS ACCUSED OF MURDER

Mystery of Alewife Brook May Be Cleared in Case That Opened in the East Cambridge Court To-day.

MEMBERS OF JURY.

No. 1—Active H. Corliss, a foreman, of Everett.

No. 2—Frank J. Green, trainman, of Framingham.

No. 3—Samuel A. Huntington, rubber boot maker, Malden.

No. 4—John M. Leahy, janitor, Medford.

N. 5—William H. Clark, farmer, of Stowe.

No. 6—Charles W. Lewis, foreman, of Melrose.

No. 7—James F. Connolly, express agent, Reading.

Sitting side by side in a double iron cage in the East Cambridge Court, Peter C. Delorey and James Mantir, both young, well-dressed and of agreeable appearance, saw the beginning of their trial today on the charge of having slain Annie Mullins in Squire's Field, Arlington, a year ago last March, by cutting her throat with a razor.

Those who looked at the boyish faces of the prisoners could hardly associate them with such an atrocious crime. The young men took the proceedings with a coolness bordering on indifference. The trial started with a rush, and when court adjourned for the noon recess at 1 o'clock seven jurors had been selected.

One of the sensations expected at the trial is the testimony of Mrs. Francis Delorey of West Billerica, an aunt of one of the accused young men. It was her story that led to the two arrests.

Greek Scowls at Crowd.

Delorey and Mantir were brought from the East Cambridge Jail by Deputy Sheriffs

HILL AT WORK, JUST SLEEPY

Looking anything but the part of the man who had just met defeat, District Attorney Arthur D. Hill stepped into the Superior Court to-day to continue the conduct of the "Boston Agreement" steel cases. He showed lack of sleep, but that was all.

After Judge Harris took the bench Assistant District Attorneys Curtis and Nesmith came with big armfuls of papers. George H. Williams, treasurer of the Boston Bridge Company, was the first witness. He was asked concerning the destruction of the books of the Boston Bridge Company and whether there were entries in the books which it had been thought best to destroy.

He denied that such was the purpose, but said that the stockholders had voted their destruction early in 1908 by vote. J. G. Andrews, contracting engineer of the Boston Bridge Works, was the next witness. He said that cards in relation to steel work had been made out by his company up to late in 1905.

10,950,000 BALES OF COTTON INDICATED

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Unusual interest in the cotton crop this year has induced the Journal of Commerce to make a special canvass among its cotton correspondents to secure their views as to the probable yield. Replies were received from 495 correspondents giving estimates of the local crop. Their average opinion for the entire cotton belt indicated a yield of 10,950,000 bales.

PELLETIER ELECTED; TO CLEAN UP BOSTON

Joseph C. Pelletier is elected District Attorney of Suffolk County.

Arthur D. Hill, appointed by Governor Draper to fill the vacancy caused by the death of John B. Moran, ran 1,410 votes behind Pelletier.

The vote for District Attorney is: Pelletier, 40,757; Hill, 39,338.

In many of the Republican wards Pelletier ran ahead of his ticket. The results showed that many Democrats voted for Hill, while on the other hand many Republicans voted for Pelletier.

Now Thewlf be home-cleaning in Boston and this county.

Mr. Pelletier has pledged his word to be faithful to the trust of the people.

Home Rule for Boston.'

He has promised to be a prosecutor, but never a persecutor.

He has promised to cleanse Boston. He has promised to investigate every complaint brought to him by organizations working for public reforms and for better social conditions.

District Attorney Pelletier has given his word to the voters, to the citizens, that he will listen to and investigate individual complaints and wrongs.

He says that he is to be the district attorney of the whole people.

"We must wage eternal war for home rule," said Mr. Pelletier. "Boston for Bostonians. Suffolk County for the majority party. Government by the people and not by appointment; these must be our watchwords.

"Those who know me, either personally or by reputation, believe me when I say that I recognize no boss and no man's dictation, that I am free to do my whole duty as District Attorney.

"No one has asked a pledge of me, no one dare to do so; my life, my character, my reputation in this city are a refutation of the charge.

Wants to Hear the People.

"I want to say that I shall not ignore the Grand Jury. If a body of reputable citizens presents to me a matter of grave importance to the community involving infractions of the law, I promise not to delay, not to stifle them, but to give them a chance to lay their evidence before the Grand Jury without delay. The Grand Jury is the people. Its rights are tremendous. Its existence is necessary to safeguard the people's rights.

"Home rule, I say, for the people of Boston, home rule for the people of the county, home rule for the courts, and everlasting protest against the tyranny and domination of Lodge and the Republican machine, everlasting defiance to their insult to our people in the charter amendments. The people rule and government by the majority must be our rallying cry."

Congratulations Pour In.

The desk of District Attorney-elect Pelletier was piled high to-day with telegrams congratulating him upon his election. Some of the telegrams came from friends and admirers who live in far-distant towns and cities of the State and some of them from distant parts of the country. Scores of friends called upon him during the day to personally congratulate him.

Speaking of his election, Mr. Pelletier said: "I am extremely gratified at my election, and I want to thank the people who cast their votes in my favor. I felt sure that I would be elected from the very start of the campaign. I shall remain true to the pledges I made during the campaign when I take up my duties as district attorney, and the people may rest assured that I shall do everything in my power to make my term a successful one in every way."

District Attorney Arthur D. Hill will not let his defeat interfere with the performance of his duties. He put his desk early to-day as usual.

"I have done the best I could," said the District Attorney with a smile, "and I am satisfied. I will turn my office over to my successor with the consciousness of having performed my duties honestly and to the best of my ability. I wish Mr. Pelletier the best of success in his new office."

HOLDING COMPANY OPPOSES NEW LINE

Frederick C. Dumaine, president of the Boston Holding Company, argued before the Railroad Commission to-day against the approval of plans for a Boston, Lowell & Lawrence electric railroad. The Holding Company, he said, is to improve for Boston & Maine service for the territory which the backers of the electric road purpose to serve. William H. Coolidge, Boston & Maine counsel; Fred W. Worcester of the Winchester successors and residents of Woburn and Winchester also voiced opposition.

LILLIAN NORDICA, SONGBIRD HERE FOR $100,000 CONTEST

COPYRIGHT BY HARRIS & EWING

NORDICA, IN COURT, FIGHTS FOR FORTUNE

Madame Lillian Nordica and the rest of the claimants for a part of the estate of their late aunt, Mrs. Minnie F. Allen of Malden, a property worth $100,000, appeared before Justice Rugg in the Superior Court, East Cambridge, to-day, in a suit they have brought to break the will.

The claimants are all nieces of the woman who left the property. They are Madame Nordica, Mrs. Annie Reinwth of Boston, Imogene A. Castillo of Los Angeles and Ione A. Walker of New York.

The effort to upset the will is on the ground that at the time she made it the testator was of unsound mind. In proof of this a clause in the will itself will probably be cited, in which the heirs who have received bequests were made to take an oath before a justice of the peace that they would never sue any part of their legacies for church or religious purposes.

Nordica Wears Jewels.

Mrs. Allen, the widow of John W. Allen, had no family for the claimant nieces, but omitted them as beneficiaries because in her opinion they were already well provided for and some of them rich.

Madame Nordica went to the courthouse in her motor car, accompanied by some of the other claimants. She wore a gray gown, a black turban hat trimmed with violets, a dotted veil. She wore diamond eardrops and an amethyst chained pendant about her neck.

George E. Fall, a Malden lawyer, told of his summons to Mrs. Allen's home to draw the will. It came by telephone and both he and his wife made a memorandum about it.

Had Religious Scruples.

He said Mrs. Allen seemed extremely anxious to have secrecy in the case and even compelled him to stuff the keyholes with putty. When it came to the matter of witnesses he asked her what to do. He said several men were at work on a new building across the street. He thought they would make excellent witnesses. To this she protested, saying she knew their religion and that she would not have people of that religion or any other around her.

FOLLOWERS OF OLD SHAH TAKE TOWN

TEHERAN, Nov. 3.—It is reported that Ardabil, in Azerbaijan province, about ninety miles from Tabriz, has been captured by the Shahseevan and Karadegh tribesmen, who have taken the field in behalf of the deposed Shah. Both the Persian and Russian governments are hurrying troops to that point, as it is feared the small Russian force and many Russian subjects in Ardabil are in danger.

SEVEN IN FIELD NOW FOR MAYOR

Six Are Named, and Mr. Storrow Will Be Added by Business Men.

Six men started in the Mayoralty Marathon under Plan 2 today. An eighth man was groomed for the race. The seven who took out papers for the nomination were:

Mayor George A. Hibbard (Republican)
Alderman Frederick J. Brand (Republican)
Nathaniel H. Taylor (Democrat)
J. Henry Duckery (politics unknown)
Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald (Democrat)
Dennis F. Mahoney (politics unknown)

The seventh, who has not yet taken out papers, is President James J. Storrow of the Chamber of Commerce, who was put into the field by the vice-president of that body, Bernard J. Rothwell.

Because of the peculiar construction of Plan Two, it is uncertain whether those who intend to take out papers will run themselves. The law permits men to become dummies. Each voter can only sign one paper. Any candidate who gets down into the field early can, therefore, corral the eligible signers and thus handicap those who enter late, or even freeze them out altogether.

Warning to Citizens.

The Committee of One Hundred having this in mind, issued this warning to citizens:

"Citizens of Boston! Sign no petition for any man for any municipal office until you have had ample time to consider carefully the merits of the several prospective candidates—self-seeking or sought for.

"There is no need of haste. Petitions can be filed until December 17.

MORTON PRINCE, Chairman.
ROBERT J. ROPPOMOLY, Secretary.
Executive committee of the Committee of One Hundred.

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald was the first to get into the field and get after names. John Gallagher, an employe of the ex-Mayor, got a set of nomination papers at the Election Commissioners' office at 10:30 o'clock. Representatives of Mayor Hibbard, Alderman Brand and Mr. Taylor appeared at noon and took blanks. Every one of these four announced that he himself was a candidate.

Duckery is unknown at City Hall. He gave his address as No. 176 Northampton street. The directory gives a man of that name described as "president, 170 Northampton."

Mahoney gave his address as No. 1,415 Washington street. The directory does not contain such a name at such an address.

President Storrow was not informally into the contest by Mr. Rothwell, who issued a statement saying that a committee of representative citizens was being organized to make a nomination. His own preference, he said, was Mr. Storrow and he declared that he would not be a candidate himself.

Bull Market for Names.

Since each voter can only sign one petition, the market for names was immediately bulled. There are only six weeks to get the required 5,000 signatures. There are no party designations. Signers of petitions do not have to indicate their political connections.

Hereupon, hangers-on at City Hall have collected signers for independent petitions at five and ten cents per name. The market closed up to-day to fifteen cents, and it was predicted that before the week was over it would be fully thirty cents. Time to get into the field, it will cost $2,500 for names alone.

It was predicted at City Hall that, with the big demand for signers, many voters (themselves would begin to demand pay for signing and that the average price of signers would soon be fifty cents each.

When a candidate gets a signer he is not sure of him, either. In case of duplications there is no way of telling which paper was signed first. There is bound to be a contest before the election commissioners.

Each sheet of paper, which can contain 100 names, must be separately sworn to, and it was said at City Hall that notaries' fees, now twenty-five cents, would jump to fifty cents.

Plan 2 was adopted by the decisive majority of 3,869, notwithstanding the fact that the political organizations mainly supported Plan 1.

Plan Two was backed by the Committee of One Hundred, selected from various civic organizations. Many prominent Democrats, while openly for it, were secretly against it.

Four-Year Term for Mayor.

Plan Two fixes the term of the next Mayor at four years. It provides for the so-called "recall" if the Mayor is unsatisfactory he may be ousted by popular vote. It abolishes party designations and party conventions in city affairs. Candidates are to be nominated by the petition of 5,000 voters. Plan Two abolishes the present City Council and substitutes a City Council of nine members.

Besides Mr. Storrow, those who have been considered as candidates are: Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, Joseph H. O'Neil, President Frederick J. Brand of the Board of Aldermen, Matthew Cummings, Mayor George A. Hibbard, John R. Murphy, James A. Sullivan, Bernard J. Rothwell, Francis H. Bangs, Nathaniel H. Taylor and A. Shuman.

"I am a candidate and I will be elected," said ex-Mayor Fitzgerald to-day. He made the first part of the statement good by taking out his papers at the first opportunity.

"I will not say anything to-day," said Mr. O'Neil, "but I will probably make a declaration in a few days."

Murphy Will Wait Awhile.

"I have no hesitancy in declaring that I am a candidate," said Alderman Brand.

"I will make a decision in a few days," was Mr. Cummings's statement. "I want to consult my friends."

"I guess I'll wait awhile and see," said John R. Murphy.

James A. Sullivan, Street Commissioner, will probably not be a candidate.

Bernard J. Rothwell says he is not a candidate, but will support President Storrow of the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Storrow is expected to announce his determination in a few days.

"I am not a candidate and never had any intention of being," said Francis H. Bangs.

A. Shuman is in New York.

Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald did not waste any time getting into the field. This is the first day for taking out papers. John Gallagher, an employe of Mr. Fitzgerald's paper, the Republic, went to the City Hall and got them at 10:30 o'clock. He refused to say for whom he was acting.

"Victory for the People."

It was put up to Mr. Fitzgerald. "Well," he laughed, "if Gallagher took the papers out for anybody else besides me he would probably lose his job, so I guess I'm it."

Mr. Rothwell, in his statement, declared that the victory of Plan Two was a victory for the people. He urged voters not to make up their minds until all the candidates are in the field. He told about the "sinister influence" of "representative politicians" to make a nomination independent of the political organizations. He declared that John F. Fitzgerald's "doom is sealed for all time."

Mr. Rothwell urged all citizens to refrain from signing nomination papers until they see who is in the field, so that the best men may get the handicapped in getting signatures. The collection of signatures would be made more difficult by the fact

CHINESE ENVOYS COMING.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The Chinese commission which is to inspect American shipbuilding yards has left San Francisco for Chicago. The State Department is making preparations to receive the commission.

Mayor Hibbard Out for Another Term

Mayor Hibbard to-day issued the following statement announcing his candidacy for re-election:

I regard the adoption of Plan Two as a vindication of my administration. Inasmuch as it is evident that the people of Boston desire the continuance of the economic principles which I have introduced.

I shall be a candidate for re-election. A statement to the contrary made by me two years ago was made in all sincerity. It was made for the purpose of convincing the people that I desired to build up no personal machine. I think I have lived up to my pledge.

A new charter having been put in force, together with the various improvements which I shall later demonstrate, causes me to feel justified in once more appealing to the voters of Boston, my platform being my record. GEORGE A. HIBBARD.

TAFT REVIEWS GREAT PARADE IN ALABAMA

By WILLIAM HOSTER.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 3.—This city is turning itself inside out to show its appreciation of the visit of President Taft. Luncheon at the Southern Club followed the review of a big parade to-day and at 1:30 p. m. the President spoke at the fair grounds.

Having been christened "Old Rabbitfoot" by Senator Bradley at Hickman, Ky., Senator Johnson of Alabama added to the President's string of titles that of "King Bee of Amiability."

Referring to the President's speech at Charlotte, N. C., a little less than a year ago, Senator Johnson said it outlined the President's plan not to make the South Republican, but to create an effective opposition to the Democratic party in the South so that the evils of that party could be checked.

Sly Dig at Taft.

"And that gave me great hope," declared Senator Johnson. "By the time this President gets through rectifying the politics of Pennsylvania, Kansas, Rhode Island and other Republican Northern States, his term will have expired."

Taft joined in the laughter that followed this pointed hint. In introducing the President, Senator Johnson delivered himself of one more sly dig.

"The South will be disposed to make a lion of President Taft," said the Senator, "but I warn you not to do it, for Teddy Roosevelt is engaged in killing off all the lions that crosses his path."

As President Taft proceeds throughout the South his popular boundless and his pleasure deepens. He spoke in enthusiastic terms to the correspondent of his newspaper in the southland. The President was deeply interested in the election returns.

PEARY FOUND POLE, BOARD SAYS TO-DAY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The full research committee of the National Geographic Society to-day reported that it had unanimously accepted Commander Peary's claims to have reached the North Pole. This announcement was made after it had considered the report of the subcommittee appointed to go into the case. The report of the sub-committee was made to-day at Hubbard Memorial Hall.

The following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, Commander Robert E. Peary has reached the North Pole, the goal sought for centuries, and,

Whereas, this is the greatest geographical achievement that this world can have opportunity to hear, therefore be it

Resolved, That a special medal be awarded to Commander Peary.

The sub-committee had thoroughly examined the original data and technical instruments of Peary's Polar journey. The investigation was made solely for the purpose of determining if Peary reached the top of the earth. With regard to any claim of priority made by him or Dr. Cook, Rieds and other explorers, all of Peary were examined by Rear Admiral Chester in New York, but all other data was examined by the sub-committee in this city, when it also questioned Peary at length.

A committee Peary will lecture November 12 under the auspices of the National Geographic Society.

United States Commissioner Hayes held him at $500 for a hearing next Wednesday. He went to jail. Cech Johnson of Burlington, Vt., brought about Clark's arrest. He answered an advertisement for a traveling companion for a party of five persons at a salary of $30 a month. A deposit of $100 was required. Johnson came to Boston and notified the postoffice inspector. Inspector Callahan went to the Tyler street address and interviewed Johnson. While there Albert Beck and his mother from Everett called and the inspector found that they came in answer to an advertisement similar to that which brought Johnson from his Vermont home.

THREE KILLED IN ELECTIONS IN KENTUCKY

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 3.—Three men are known to have been killed and several wounded in election fights. At Jellico, James Ayers was shot seven times and killed. Several arrests followed. Democrat Theron Noble was killed in the Breathitt fighting. Moses Perkins was the third victim. He was killed in Louisville. In Mercer County Thomas Warr, a Democrat, was fatally wounded by Erastus Holliday, a Republican.

Jackson, the centre of the Hargis-Callahan feud, is in a reign of terror to-day, following an all-night election fight in which a dynamite bomb was exploded and 5,000 shots were fired by thieves. The soldiers were unable to check the disorder, which lasted until early to-day.

A party of the town's leading men and women were driven from the Democratic headquarters when bullets began to crash through the boards of the building. The refugees were forced to dash through a rain of bullets, picking their way with the aid of lanterns to a brick structure, where they barricaded themselves.

The firing began with the first election returns and both factions were in the streets, firing promiscuously. The troops were insufficient for the checking of the disorder and for hours the town was a battlefield.

GOV. POTHIER WINS AGAIN BY OVER 11,000

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 3.—By the largest plurality ever given a Governor in this State, Aram J. Pothier, and the whole Republican State ticket have been elected. Pothier's plurality is over 11,000. The rest of the State ticket is as follows:

Lieutenant-Governor—Zenas W. Bliss.

Secretary of State—J. Fred Parker.

Attorney General—William B. Greenough.

General Treasurer—Walter A. Read.

One of the gratifying results of the election was the giving to the Governor the right of veto power. This required a three-fifths vote of the people, but the voters of the State believed that the Governor should have this power, so that he would be on an equality with the chief magistrates of other States. This power was formerly possessed by the Governor of the State, but when Higgins was Governor it was denied him.

MANTIR AND DELOREY PLACED ON TRIAL FOR ANNIE MULLINS'S DEATH

William E. Walsh of Framingham and Charles Whitman of Marlboro at 9:45. Delorey was handcuffed to Walsh and Mantir to Whitman. In the rear walked County Sheriffs Walter C. Wardwell and Charles H. Eycleth.

Delorey was dressed in a black suit and was smiling. The Greek, Mantir, was scowling. He wore a dark blue suit. Both had on black derby hats. There was a large crowd in the vicinity of the jail, in spite of the pouring rain. Sergeant McMenimon and Patrolman Scully of the Cambridge police held the crowds in check.

A double cage was placed in the court room and the men were placed in this. Delorey sat on the right of the cage and Mantir on the left. The prison pallor was very noticeable on both.

As soon as the men were seated Attorney Frank McDermott of Cambridge, counsel for Delorey, consulted with his client. Judges Fox and White entered immediately afterward. No spectators were allowed in the court room, and the seats were all taken by the 161 talesmen present. The first talesman was Andrew P. Hosley, a farmer of Kingsboro. He answered all questions and was accepted by the government. He was challenged by Delorey.

Archie H. Corliss of Everett, a foreman, was accepted by both sides and took his seat in the jury box at 10:15 o'clock.

John W. Enright of Medford, district superintendent of gypsy moth work, was opposed to capital punishment, but said that he would vote to convict a man of first degree murder if the evidence warranted it. He was challenged by District Attorney Higgins.

Steel Man Fits Excused.

Albert W. Stone of Sudbury, a farmer, was challenged after answering questions by District Attorney Higgins.

Charles N. Flint of Newton, secretary of the New England Structural Company and the chief witness at the steel trial, was excused.

James H. Wright of Cambridge, an architect, was excused. James Frank Pope of Melrose and Carl J. E. Sanderson of Lowell were opposed to capital punishment and were excused. Joseph F. Linn of Lexington was challenged by Mantir.

The second juror chosen was Frank J. Green, a trimmer of Framingham. He was accepted by both sides at 10:33 and took his seat.

The third juror was selected at 11 o'clock. He is Samuel A. Huntington, a rubber boot maker of Malden. He was the twenty-third talesman examined.

Hugh L. Holt, a Belmont farmer, upon declaring that he had formed and expressed an opinion on the case, was asked by Judge Fox:

"You are not saying that for the sake of escaping jury duty, are you?"

"No," he replied, and then declared that he could act on his conscience.

While the talesmen were being examined the prisoners sat motionless in their cage. Delorey sat with his arms folded before him and with his head and vest unbuttoned. The faces of each were expressionless. Mantir kept his eyes on the judges and sat erect on the edge of his chair with his hands folded.

John H. Leahy of Medford, a janitor, was the fourth talesman seated. He was not forty questions and was chosen at 11:23 o'clock.

The fifth selection was William H. Clark of Stowe, a farmer, who was seated at 11:55.

Clarence W. Lewis of Melrose, a forester, was the sixth. Fifty-five men had been questioned.

The seventh juror is James F. Connolly of Reading, an express agent.

Talesman Is Unwilling.

"I don't want to serve," he told Judge Fox, "I would rather be at home."

He said that he objected to capital punishment, but on further questioning said that he would vote to convict for first degree murder if the evidence warranted.

George G. Gignac, a Marlboro clerk, declared he would never vote to convict a man or woman the penalty was death. He was excused.

DR. RITCHIE LAUDS POPE

"All honor to the Pope of Rome for his defense of the inspiration of Holy Scriptures," said the Rev. Dr. Arthur Ritchie, rector of St. Ignatius's Church, New York, before the convention of the Methodist Episcopal clergy and laity in St. John the Evangelist Church, Bowdoin street, to-day.

"They tell us, these modern critics, and defenders of modernism, that Jonah was not swallowed by a great fish, when even Christ himself used this as a type of his own resurrection. They tell us Daniel was more, and were able to give better information, about life itself than he was.

"They talk about unity of the church with the non-Catholic bodies—this is the Episcopal church with the large Protestant world, and those who are working to bring on a scheme of union, like the present bishop of New York, declare that Episcopacy is the bar to union. What is going to become of the sacramental system of the church? Are we to fall into their miserable little imitation of a valid sacrament? Are we going to give up the authority of the church? Are we going to belittle the grace of orders to please some of the influentiality of the church, who are foremost in this effort toward union?"

1915 SHOW IS MAKING HIT

Archbishop William H. O'Connell paid a visit to the Boston 1915 Exposition in the old Art Museum in Copley Square and expressed himself as greatly surprised at the beauty and variety of the exhibits. The Archbishop was alone and spent a long time in the building.

Another visitor who seemed to find great interest in everything was President Will iam A. Bancroft of the Boston Elevated. His corporation has a very fine exhibit.

The famous Pittsburg Survey, one of the best exhibits of civic research ever got together, has been unpacked and is on exhibition this morning.

The famous Curtiss hydro-plane in which that famous American won the gold international cup at Rheims shows off to great advantage in the big hall, where it has been artistically placed on the second floor.

The intendance is keeping up to the previous days and with the return of some of the weather everything indicates that the building will find crowds to fill its capacity.

There are thousands of features, any one of which is worth from five minutes to an hour of study and all of which show in a striking way what each may do for a finer Boston.

BOSTON SPORTS PAY $242 FINES AND SKIP

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Nov. 3.—Four race track pool sellers from Boston, all giving assumed names, paid $242.80 in fines here to-day for betting at the Woonsocket race track. Fearing that more charges might be brought against them friends of the Boston men secured a taxicab and while the sheriff was on his way to get more warrants, hustled the quartet out of town. They were arrested on complaint of Truman R. Sadd of Willimantic, Ct., owner of the pacing gelding Billikin.

TO-DAY'S CABLE NEWS

Up to Midnight, London Time

Pope Pleased at Progress of Church in Philippines.

ROME—Mgr. Ambrose Agius, the apostolic delegate to the Philippines, received in audience by the Pope, made his report on the condition of the church in the Islands and told the Pope that considerable of the recent development of the archipelago was due to the efforts of the episcopate to co-operate with the civil authorities. Mgr. Agius also recounted to the Pope the story of the hearty good wishes lavished on him when he left Manila. He spoke in the warmest terms of the kindness, courtesy and respect that were shown by all classes toward the representatives of the Holy See. It is thought likely that Pope Pius, who was greatly pleased at the report, will agree to the suggestion of Mgr. Agius that the number of bishops in the Philippines be increased.

Mildred Carter's Two Suitors.

LONDON—When Ridgely Carter, Consul for the American Embassy, leaves London to take up his new post of American minister at Bucharest he may have to leave his daughter, Miss Mildred, behind him. At any rate, it is understood that the question of Miss Mildred's accompanying her father to Roumania will involve a conflict of love and duty on the young lady's part. Two most eligible members of the better set in London's society have been paying Miss Carter marked attentions, and the imminence of her departure has, it is said, led both young men to propose. So far Miss Carter not only has no choice to make in the matter of filial duty, but has also to solve her embarrassment of two proposals.

King Alfonso Protests.

PARIS—A special correspondent of the Journal, who was sent to Madrid, has succeeded in gaining an interview with King Alfonso. He quotes the Spanish monarch as saying that he was pained to "see in France a false interpretation placed on the events in Barcelona." The King could not conceive how among those who had protested against the execution of Ferrer there were men of intelligence who, without inquiry, denounced the judgment pronounced in conformity with the laws of the country about which they knew nothing, and which was reached under the guarantees of the honor of Spanish officers.

Artist Frith Dead at Ninety.

LONDON—William Powell Frith, R. A., the painter, is dead. He was born in 1819. He painted the pictures of "Othello and Desdemona" and "Malvolio Before the Countess Olivia" as far back as 1840. The next year he painted "The Parting Interview Between Leicester and Amy Robsart." Among his numerous other pictures were "The Marriage of the Prince and Princess of Wales," in 1865; "Before Dinner at Boswell's Lodgings"; "The Road to Ruin," in 1878, and "The Private View of the Royal Academy" in 1881.

Peer's Daughter Will Wed.

LONDON—Special interest is aroused here by the news of the engagement of Mary, daughter of Lord and Lady Colebrooke, and Ronald Pease. The Colebrookes occupy a leading place in society as friends of the King, and are well-known to many Americans. Pease is one of the younger members of the Pease family. His fiance made her debut very recently.

To Replace War Balloon.

PARIS—The Temps has closed its national subscription which was started for the purpose of replacing the war balloon La Republique and giving money to the families of the four victims of the wreck of the airship. The subscriptions amounted to 302,862 francs, or about $60,572.

ROTHWELL LAUNCHES MAYORALTY MOVEMENT FOR JAMES J. STORROW

that many city employes will not sign because they fear the ultimate Mayor might take revenge upon them.

Here is Mr. Rothwell's statement:

"The principal thing now is to keep the citizens of Boston from stampeding for any particular candidate before they learn what names may be submitted for their consideration. The people have won a great victory, but if they tie themselves up much of the value of the victory will be lost. There are six weeks in which to sign petitions, and if the Boston American can help to impress this fact on the minds of the people it will be doing a valuable work.

To Organize Big Committee.

"I have reason to believe that within a very few days a meeting will be called of as representative a committee as can be brought together, representing all interests and whose presence will show that they are men who will act on their own initiative. They are not members of the Good Government Association. They are not members of the committee of one hundred. I am not a member of this committee.

"These men will be the nucleus of a larger committee, which will be formed to consider the situation and take such action and make such recommendations as will help the people to keep the fruits of their victory instead of having to suffer from the acts of unscrupulous politicians.

"Each of these twenty-five men will suggest five or ten other names of men to join them in their work, and they will make a group of men who cannot be dictated to.

"These men will be the nucleus of a larger committee?"

"I have no means of knowing, but if I were asked by a committee of twenty-five citizens to act with them in such a matter I should feel it my duty to do so."

"Storrow the Ideal."

"Shall you be a candidate for Mayor?"

"I can conceive of no possibility that would require me to give up my business upon which my living depends, and in which I am deeply interested, to accept a political position for which I have absolutely no ambition."

"Whom do you favor?"

"From the time Plan Two seemed to be possible I have felt that James J. Storrow was all around the nearest approaching to the ideal candidate of any man of prominence before the public. That is my feeling now. That is my personal view. I have no means of knowing who will be suggested by the committee, nor do I know that Mr. Storrow is a candidate. I believe that Mr. Storrow has the equipment of honesty, fair mindedness and consideration of all the various elements that make up a great city like this.

"He is broadly humanitarian, as is shown by his public acts. He is a man of broad vision, who realizes the possibilities of Boston, properly directed, and, finally, he has the confidence of the people that will assure fair action of any plans he may put forward for civic betterment.

"Under the working of Plan Two would not a number of candidates having no organization be helpless before a candidate such as Mr. Fitzgerald?"

Nomination papers for the city election may be had for the next six weeks. They must be filed with the Board of Election Commissioners not later than 5 o'clock on December 17. Certification of nomination papers must be completed not later than 5 o'clock, December 27. Withdrawals and objections must be made not later than 5 o'clock, December 28. Nominations must be made not later than 5 o'clock, December 30. The municipal election will take place Tuesday, January 11.

G. G. A. to Stay in Background.

The Committee of one Hundred, the principal supporter of Plan Two, met today in Barrister Hall to discuss a proposition to call a meeting of representative citizens to nominate candidates under the revised charter. Edmund Billings, secretary of the Good Government Association, was present at the meeting. He made this statement regarding the attitude of the G. G. A.:

"A movement is now on foot to bring together representative citizens to put up a city ticket. While this movement the Good Government Association is going to have nothing to do with it, as we still consider it the duty of the association to continue as it has done in the last six years, namely, without bias or prejudice for any particular candidate, and to make a report to all citizens regarding the records of all the candidates."

WATER FRONT PROPERTY IN FIRE PERIL

The big two-story building of the City Refuse Utilization plant at Nos. 438 and 442 Atlantic avenue was to-day destroyed by a fire that spread to the block of one-story wooden and brick buildings at 446 to 456 Atlantic avenue and threatened the entire water front and leather district. The damage is estimated at over $10,000.

The big power house of the Edison Electric Light Company immediately adjoining the refuse plant was also in danger, and firemen feared that the fire would reach the big gasoline tanks in the company's garage and cause an explosion that would blow the building to atoms.

For a distance of 200 yards from the scene of the fire the air was a veritable whirlpool of blazing brands and sparks that rained upon buildings and into the streets, starting several small fires. Firemen were scattered throughout the leather district extinguishing these blazes with fire extinguishers and chemical lines. The strong southwest gale carried burning pieces of paper and wood as far away as State street, the glare of the fire lit up the sky and could be seen for miles in every direction.

Heavy beams fell from the roof of the structure and halted several attempts of the firemen to get into the burning building and fight the fire from the inside. The firemen, themselves, were unable to get near enough to the blazing structure to use its big guns, and the members of the company were forced to fight the fire on foot. The salt water ejected was used by the firemen, and the wagon gun, the latest invention of the Fire Department, was brought into play for the first time.

TECH AGAIN CALLS OFF ANNUAL RUSH

The annual class rush between the Tech freshmen and sophomores, which for years has taken place on the night before Field Day on Tech field in Brookline, when the two classes battled to place their class number high in a tree, is a thing of the past. The sophomore class this year has seconded the decision last year to call off the rush.

SCHOOL GIRL BRIDE WHOSE ROMANCE IS ENDED IN LOVE SUIT

MRS. JAMES C. THOMPSON

Mrs. James C. Thompson, the nineteen-year-old schoolgirl bride, whose young husband has sued her father, Matthews T. Scargle of Cambridge, for alienation of her affections, declares that their separation was due to her husband's cruelty.

"Why, I had to leave my husband because he was cruel and abusive," said Mrs. Thompson to-day. "I left him to protect myself and would not return until he had left my father's house, in which we were living at the time. The idea of my father being to blame for my leaving him!

"If he had more sense perhaps he would have been able to treat me well. So I left him in April of last year. I have a divorce, to take effect next April."

When Thompson married his young bride, he quit school and went to work. Now he is living with his parents again. In his suit, he declares that his wife's father, who is a foreman in the Cambridge Street Department, was responsible for the separation of himself and his wife.

RANCHMAN IS A WITNESS IN RUSSELL CASE

The fight for the half-million dollars left by the late Daniel Russell of Melrose, was resumed in the East Cambridge Probate Court to-day, Judge Lawton presiding.

Daniel Blake Russell, claimant to half of the property, was present with his counsel, primed with evidence secured during the fortnight's interim granted by the court.

They say they will completely demolish the intricate fabric builded by the defendant, William C. Russell, owner of the estate, who denies all relationship with the claimant, and says Daniel is not his brother but a fraudulent claimant.

Identifies Photograph.

Charles E. Everson of North Dakota, whose ranch is not far from that owned by the claimant, was the first witness. He said he met the claimant in 1905 with his wife, whom he identified among the women present.

Q.—Ever hear Daniel Russell say anything about his birthplace? A.—He said his people were in New York State.

Q.—Did he say anything about his family? A.—Yes, he spoke once or twice of his father. He said he was living in Malone, N. Y.

Q.—Did he say what folks called him there? A.—He said they called him Jim.

Q.—Did he say if his name was known by there? A.—Yes, he said his name was James Daniel Russell.

Q.—Ever see a photo of him?

The witness then identified a photograph as one exactly like one that was given to Daniel Russell by the claimant. This is the photograph that Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brosseau of Malone and others identified as that of their missing son.

Modifies Testimony.

The witness said he had talked with Russell before the cause took from New York during the Summer and Russell had told him he had been East looking after an inheritance left by his father who had died at Melrose.

C. W. Prantz, who is a former partner of Daniel Blake Russell a few days ago swore that the claimant was not he. To-day Cook also stood and modified that declaration. He said he would not now swear positively.

FAMOUS ART WORK FOR BOSTON MUSEUM

Trustees of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts have purchased from the Blakeslee Galleries of New York one of the most important Spanish primitives ever brought to this country. It is understood that it has been hung next to a famous Velasquez which the institution had for years in its old building.

ELECTION DAY STORY TOLD IN A FEW LINES

Draper's Plurality	8,382	Frothingham's Plurality	5,2
Draper's Loss Over Last Year	51,774	Frothingham's Loss Over Last Year	91,0
Pelletier Elected by	1,419	Plan 2 Carried by	3,86

DRAPER'S PLURALITY IS ONLY 8,382; REPUBLICAN BOSSES ARE DISMAYED

Draper's plurality for governor is 8,382. One year ago he received 60,156 votes more than Vahey. His plurality this year was cut down by 51,774 votes.

Louis A. Frothingham, for Lieutenant-Governor, received a plurality of 5,209 votes, or 91,08 votes less than he got last year, the greatest Republican reverse in the history of Massachusetts, without carrying defeat with it.

Nine Massachusetts cities for years safely in the Republican column, yesterday returned Democratic pluralities.

Chelsea, Chicopee, Fall River and Holyoke were four of the nine cities to be overthrown politically from Republican strongholds to Democratic.

The towns of the Cape, hitherto safely Republican, swung to the Democratic standard. John F. White, Independent, defeated Thomas Pattison by 885 votes.

Democratic Gain in House.

In the House the Democrats gained four seven members.

In the Senate the Democrats gained one member.

Boston gave Vahey 19,106 plurality over Draper. Last year Vahey's plurality in Boston was but 12,061. He gained 7,072 in this city alone.

Vahey in the State over received 14,113 more than he did last year. The Independence League voters cast their suffrages for Vahey.

The result of the election has thrown the greatest fright into the camp of Boss Lodge and the other Republican leaders they have received for years. Massachusetts, the once pillared Republican gibraltar, almost slipped from their grasp.

As one consequence of the election James R. Vahey and Eugene N. Foss have announced their intention to seek renomination next year by the Democratic party.

Leaders of the Democratic party among the united in declaring Vahey and Foss will be the logical candidates of the party next year.

State Leaving Republican Moorings.

The returns indicate many things. They show that the voters of the State are heartily tired of the rule of Boss Lodge, are rebelled, and striking out the desperate efforts of a machine fast breaking down saved the day.

The rise of the continued revolt given the labor interests of the State, the veering of the old-line Democrats to Democratic ures, the desire of the people for real nomination of their names were significantly reflected in results of Tuesday.

The returns show that the State Legislature will again Democratic in the Senate is Republican by a membership of thirty-three Republicans to seven Democrats, a gain of one member for the Democracy. The House of Representatives will have 172 Republicans and 87 Democrats.

Eugene N. Foss, ex-Congressman from Boston, he received 16,575. Frothingham received 10,811 votes, giving Foss a plurality of 17,764.

To-day the Republican leaders are taking stock. On all sides they are confronted with views of wrecked or mismatched strong holds and chaos.

What they will do to recoup is an interesting problem. If there is any ray of hope on the ground they can hear but one thing, the revolt of the independent and disgusted Republican voter.

There is nothing of comfort to be gathered from the returns. Saved, nevertheless, but by the skin of their teeth.

Tariff Was a Factor.

The question of the tariff has cut a wide swath in this State. The meagre plurality for the majority party indicates that the people are tired.

Another warning to the Republican machine is the stomach display of 19 local vote. The vote results the political revolution of five years ago, which swept down to defeat because of the black eye given the meritless office.

The result shows Lodge and the other Republicans of his ilk have of their machine that when labor is thoroughly aroused it is a power for revolution and one full of danger and a might which must be reckoned with.

Though defeated, the Democrats feel that they have little cause to be chagrined by the day and Foss were, indeed, defeated, but at what cost to the Republicans. All over the State Republican pluralities were swept away and strong pluralities so reduced that next year for the whole State it is a

Doty Is Satisfied.

Colonel Doty, chairman of the Republican State Committee, professes to be pleased with the result and even with the vote. "The campaign has been characterized by the most deliberate misrepresentation of the motives of the Chief Executive," he declared to-day, "and the discussion by prejudiced speakers of the Democratic party of national matters, which, by means of an apparently unlimited expenditure of money, have been falsely thrown upon the public screen. In spite of this the sound common sense of the citizens of our Commonwealth has triumphed and re-elected one of the ablest and most courageous governors the State has ever had."

Congressman Gardner, Lodge's son-in-law, had this most significant thing to say:

"It looks to me as if the Payne tariff bill was not popular in Massachusetts."

Lodge Isn't Talking.

Congressman Weeks had no comment to make which he thought would be politic at this juncture. His manner showed that he was thinking a great deal, all the same. Other leaders were equally uncommunicative, a strange attitude, if the "victory" was all that they wanted it to be. Many of them plainly indicated that they thought that the agitation about the cost of living had stirred the people as never before.

Among the many surprises to the Republicans was Brockton. This Republican stronghold, which last year gave Draper more than 1,000 plurality, flopped from Vahey to Foss and gave him 1,501 more votes than the Republican standard bearer.

Chelsea Is Democratic.

Malden furnished a surprise, too, by the re-election of Thomas P. Riley, a Democrat, to the House of Representatives.

In Ward 7 Nathan A. Tufts, coach of the Waltham High School football eleven, got 121 votes more than Governor Draper in his election as Representative.

Chelsea, which went for Draper last year by 224, this time reported itself and voted for Vahey by a margin of 137, on the same line it gave another surprise by electing a Democratic House with 208 votes to spare.

Chicopee, a Draper foothold by 58 last year, almost from under the feet of Vahey by 143.

Fall River, turned a political summersault by 1,148 more votes than Draper. Last year Draper carried the city by 874.

Holyoke was another of the blue cities in Massachusetts to jump from the ranks of the bosses yesterday. It gave Vahey a plurality of 1,202.

WHISKEY FOR RHEUMATISM

Formula Whose Quick Action Surprises Expert Doctors.

The increased use of whiskey for rheumatism is causing considerable discussion among the medical fraternity. It is a wonderful cure when mixed with certain other ingredients and taken properly. The following is the formula:

"To one-half pint of good whiskey add one ounce of Toris compound and one ounce of syrup Sarsaparilla compound. Take in tablespoonful doses before each meal and before retiring."

Toris compound is a product of the laboratories of the Globe Pharmaceutical Co. of Chicago, but it, as well as the other ingredients, can be gotten from any good prescription druggist.

This formula was published here last Winter and hundreds of people that used it were promptly benefited.

'BIG VICTORY,' SAYS VAHEY

Just about as happy as if he had been elected, his voice resonant and sounding a note of optimism, the Hon. James H. Vahey was an early riser in his Watertown home.

"What do you think, Governor?" asked a friend. "For a good many think that will be your title next year."

"Thanks, very much," he said. "I think that we have gained a grand victory.

"Look at what we undertook. See what we accomplished. The world was not made in a day. Reform must be fought for not in one election, but persistently, consistently and intelligently. The fight against the forces which are stronging this State has only begun. Yes, I am very well satisfied with our progress. It is magnificent."

SCALP DISEASE PUZZLED DOCTORS

Began with a Little Pimple—Itched and Spread Till Whole Head was Raw—Hair Fell Out in Bunches—Suffered Three Years and Cure Seemed Impossible.

IMMEDIATE RELIEF AND EASY CURE BY CUTICURA

"My disease started with a little pimple on my head. Then it began to itch. The more I would scratch, the worse it grew until it spread all over my head. So I went to the doctor. I continued his treatment for some time but, finding no results, I decided to change and try some other remedy. Little warts began to grow on my head. I would wash it every day but it grew as raw as a piece of beef and my hair commenced to fall out in bunches. So I changed doctors. This doctor prescribed a wash and a salve. My head at this time was so sore I could not touch it. After trying several doctors and many patent medicines nothing would cure it and I lost much time from work.

"Then I decided to go to the hospital. Several doctors were called in to look at it, and after consultation they said that I had seborrhoea in its worst stage. They began to treat it but it improved very slowly. For over four years I was a sufferer from this disease. I thought all hope of a permanent cure was impossible. A friend of mine, upon seeing the condition of my head — which was a man of means — urged me to try it. I told him that I would do so as my good; but being very anxious to be cured, I decided to try them. The first treatment (Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills) brought immediate relief. I had become almost discouraged falling out, all the scale left and now I am perfectly well and have a full head of hair. I can truthfully say that it was entirely due to the use of the Cuticura Remedies and I recommend them to all sufferers from any skin disease." George E. Jefferson, 1318 Reed St., Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 24, 1909."

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humor of Infants, Children and Adults consists of Cuticura Soap (25c.) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c.) to Heal the Skin and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.), or in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills (25c. per vial of 60) to Purify the Blood. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston. Cuticura Soap Shaves without mug. AYNOR WINS LECTION BY 73,016 VOTES

EW YORK, Nov. 3.—William J. Gay- Democrat, was elected Mayor of ater New York by a plurality of 73,016. The complete returns to-day show the te for Mayor was: Gaynor, 250,078; Ban- ird, 177,062; Hearst, 153,843. On the istrict attorneyship the vote was: Whit- man, Fusion, 147,649; Battle, Tammany, 127,006.

With the exception of the mayoralty the Fusion ticket made a clean sweep in both the Greater City and the several counties.

Both William A. Prendergast for comptroller and John F. Mitchell for president for the Board of Aldermen were elected by handsome majorities. Mr. Prendergast seems to win by over 50,000 with Mr. Mitchell running 5,000 behind him.

The greatest triumph for the Fusion forces was in the County of New York, the Tammany stronghold. There Charles H. Whitman, Fusion, was elected to preside over the important office of District At- torney for the next four years, over George Gordon Battle, Democrat, by more than 26,000.

George McAneny, long known as presi- dent of the City Club, was elected presi- dent of the Borough of Manhattan by a generous majority of 17,000 over Haag, the Tammany candidate.

Queens was the only borough in which Mr. Hearst ran as an independent with an Independent borough president candidate on his ticket. Against both matches, the In- dependent of the Hearst ticket, Lawrence Gresser won over Joseph Cassidy, Tam- many, and Joseph Du Bruzza, Republican. The victory was decisive, Mr. Gresser hav- ing more than both the regular parties combined in many districts.

The Board of Estimate, the governing board of the Greater City, with financial power and by whose vote every contract over $1,000 is let, will, after January 1, stand: Fusion, 13; Tammany, 3; as fol- lows:

Mayor Gaynor, Democratic, three votes. Comptroller Prendergast, Fusion, three votes.

President of the Aldermen Mitchell, Fusion, three votes.

President of Manhattan McAneny, Fu sion, two votes.

President of Brooklyn Alfred E. Steers, Fusion, two votes.

President of the Bronx Miller, Fusion, one vote.

President of Queens Gresser, Fusion, one vote.

President of Richmond Cromwell, Fusion, one vote.

TAMMANY'S WORST MEN ARE DEFEATED IN NEW YORK CITY

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The AMERICAN to-day publishes the following editorial:

"The Fusion ticket is worthy of support.

"That ticket is already in the field.

"If you nominate another ticket, both tickets may be defeated.

"If you nominate the Fusion ticket, Tammany will be defeated.

"And if Tammany is defeated, the citizens win, no matter whether Mr. Gaynor is elected, or Mr. Bannard is elected, or I am elected."

—From William R. Hearst's reply to the Cooper Union Committee.

This is the basis and these are the motives on which Mr. Hearst entered the race for Mayor.

Well, the Tammany ticket is defeated. At least, the dangerous part of it is eliminated, and the Board of Estimate is saved from Tammany by the election of Prendergast for Comptroller and of Mitchel for President of the Aldermanic Board.

And so, at last, the citizens win.

And this was the purpose—the sole purpose—for which Mr. William R. Hearst entered the race for Mayor. He said so in his reply to the Cooper Union committee. He said so with greater emphasis, in his speech of ac- ceptance at Carnegie Hall. He has said so repeatedly throughout the cam- paign.

The purpose of the Hearst candidacy has been, in part, accomplished. Without his participation both Moore and Galvin would have been elected, and Tammany, with full control of the Board of Estimate ,would have had a clean sweep at the thousand million dollars of the city's money.

Mr. Hearst feels that he has not fought in vain.

Being in the Municipal race, it was not in Mr. Hearst's spirit or tem- per to drift or to be a drone. He is always aggressive, born to battle, and never does things halfway. If he was in at all it was his duty to fight for success, as he did.

If Mr. Hearst had been merely selfish in this matter or looking solely to his prestige or his vote it would have been his policy to insist upon a straight Civic Alliance ticket. No one knew this better than Mr. Hearst himself.

In the same letter to the Cooper Union Committee he distinctly said:

"I HAVE DECIDED TO ACCEDE TO YOUR REQUEST AND TO EN- TER THIS CAMPAIGN AGAINST TAMMANY HALL UPON ONE CON- DITION.

"THAT CONDITION IS THAT THE OPPOSITION TO TAMMANY HALL SHALL BE UNITED AND NOT DIVIDED. I KNOW THAT MY PERSONAL VOTE WOULD BE LARGER ON A STRAIGHT INDEPEND- ENT TICKET. BUT I AM NOT CONSIDERING MY PERSONAL CHANCES OF ELECTION."

If Mr. Hearst had run on a straight Independent ticket EVERY MAN ON THAT TICKET WOULD HAVE BEEN WORKING FOR HEARST. As it was, he VOLUNTARILY PREFERRED to run with the Fusion ticket, on which EVERY MAN WAS WORKING FOR BANNARD, and some of them speaking for Bannard at Mr. Hearst's own meetings. MR. HEARST GAVE TO THE FUSION TICKET ALL HIS STRENGTH. THE FUSION TICKET GAVE ALL ITS STRENGTH TO BANNARD.

In the Borough of Queens Mr. Hearst did run on an independent ticket. The result is seen in a larger proportionate vote for Mr. Hearst in Queens than in any other borough. So that, of course, the divided vote of yester- day can be no measure of the numerical strength of Mr. Hearst.

But we have neither space nor desire for explanation. The result is decisive.

The will of the people is the law of the land. As it seems to be the will of this people that Judge Gaynor should be their Mayor, no good citi- zen can fail to bow to the verdict expressed at the polls.

Mr. Hearst and the New York AMERICAN repeatedly offered to support Judge Gaynor as an independent or Fusion candidate. The New York Amer- ican and Mr. Hearst opposed Judge Gaynor purely because of his associa- tions and because of his full acceptance of the things for which they stood. Neither Mr. Hearst nor the American has anything to regret. If the race was to be run over to-morrow they would oppose the same Judge Gaynor under the same conditions, just as heartily as they had done in this cam- paign.

Having done its full duty in protest and warning, it only remains for the American, as a good citizen, to make the best of things as they are.

This paper does not emerge from the campaign with a hate of bitter- ness in its attitude toward the next administration.

If the real Judge Gaynor—the Gaynor of the Bench—should emerge as Mayor from the muck and the shadow which enveloped and absorbed him as the candidate of Tammany, and stand with an honest Board of Estimate and for the clean, honest government which this plundered city demands, he will find in these columns not captious opposition, but cordial support.

Some of the creatures elected upon the Tammany ticket are shameful and discreditable. The elevation of such men to positions of trust and power is, and will continue to be, a source of unspeakable regret.

For Judge Gaynor himself we shall hope the best things.

It is in his power to splendidly redeem the mistakes made in this cam- paign. He fronts a magnificent opportunity, and therefore a magnificent re- sponsibility.

The American will lend him its full co-operation to meet both oppor- tunity and responsibility like a citizen and a patriot.

RESIGNATION THREATS NOW UP TO GAYNOR

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Will William J. Gaynor serve his term in office? That was the question asked to-day when his threat to resign if the board of estimate was not also Democratic was brought up. John P. Mitchell, Fusion presi- dent of the board of aldermen, said to-day that he was ready to take up the duties of mayor should Gaynor quit. In a speech made in the Bronx last Thursday Gaynor made his threat in these words:

"Just think of electing me with a hos- tile board of estimate. Why, you would free me to death. I could not stand it and I would not stay there."

In a speech Saturday night, however, Gaynor contradicted himself declaring that he had no intention of stepping out if re- turned by the voters. A move in question the Mayor-elect as to which statement he will stand on was talked of to-day.

John P. Mitchell to-day said that he had no doubt that Gaynor would resign. He said:

"He has said repeatedly in public that if the Tammany board of estimate was not elected and he was he would resign. We expect no eminent and pious a jurist to keep his word. In that event it would be my duty to assume the office of Mayor under the law. I am ready to do so, since Mr. Gaynor is determined to thrust the honor upon me."

With Tammany, except for the ticket- vender, routed all down the line, the re- tirement of Charles F. Murphy from the leadership of Tammany Hall was predicted to-day.

Otto T. Bannard, the defeated Republi- can mayoralty candidate, to-day praised William Randolph Hearst for "pulling the Fusion ticket through."

The board of estimate in the next four years will spend $1,000,000,000 on city improvements, and besides this $150,000,- 000 for transit facilities. Mayor-elect Gaynor was asked at noon if he would keep his campaign promise to resign if elected should the board of estimate re- turned be hostile to him.

"That's enough, that's enough," he answered. "Nothing to say. No questions now. Later on I'll make a statement."

The mayoralty election cost fully $2,500,- 000, of which $1,000,000 was spent by the city, about $175,000 by the State and the balance by the political parties.

DIRECT PRIMARY PLAN OF HUGHES IS GIVEN SUPPORT

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 3.—The election re- turns from all over the State to-day show a victory for the direct primary forces led by Governor Hughes. About one-third of the Assembly, with the new members elected yesterday, is now pledged to the support of the system. Speaker Wadsworth of the Assembly, in the fight at Livingston county, 500 against 1,800 majority in his last fight.

RAILWAY STATION BURNED.

LISBON FALLS, Me., Nov. 3.—The Maine Central station here was totally de- stroyed by fire, the blaze probably start- ing from a spark from the midnight train. Both the hand tub and the steamer were used, but it was impossible to save the station and the firemen directed their at- tention to saving the freight sheds. The loss is about $2,500.

Slow Digestion

A Frequent Form of Stomach Trouble Readily Cured by Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

This complaint constitutes one of the most common forms of dyspepsia. It is the bane of those who ignore natural laws, and forget that the healthy action of the stomach is dependent on the condition of both body and mind. Those whose pursuits oblige them to pass much of their time within doors; men of letters, and of business, whose minds are seldom perfectly relaxed; administrators, speculators, financiers, and the various professional men fall ready victims to it.

Slow digestion occurs in persons of all temperaments and habits, but oftenest in those of irritable, or nervous disposition, and anxious aspect of countenance, who are popularly characterized as "dyspeptic looking." Eating too rapidly is a common, exciting cause of the disorder, as is also imperfect mastication of food from loss of teeth.

There is also a deficiency of the gastric juices, and an insufficiency of the motor and muscular, or churning movements of the stomach walls, and the food remains entirely too long in this organ, instead of being passed down into the small intestine at the proper time.

Even a dinner not exceeding the ordinary limits is followed at varying intervals, but usually within an hour, by a feeling of weight and oppression in the stomach. For several hours afterward the person experiences decided discomfort, and should even a light supper be taken, horrible nightmare and troubled dreams are certain to result.

"I should be quite well, if it were not necessary to eat," is a common statement made by sufferers from this form of stomach complaint. Many of them actually dread the approach of meal time, knowing what disagreeable symptoms they are sure to experience after eating; and would doubtless discontinue the ingestion of food into their stomachs altogether if it were possible to live without eating.

There is really no necessity whatever for depriving one's self of the pleasures of the table, or to starve the rest of the system because the stomach is derelict in its duty, and does not digest the food as quickly or as thoroughly as it should.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets compel the stomach to perform its functions properly and assist it very materially in the discharge of its duties, a single grain of the principal digestive ingredient of these tablets being sufficient to digest 3,000 grains of food. They not only digest the food, however, but also tone up and strengthen the peptic glands, and the motor functions, so that the food will not remain in the stomach longer than necessary. Every case of slow digestion and all other forms of dyspepsia are readily curable by the use of these tablets, which make up the gastric deficiency, and supply the disordered stomach with exactly the same digestive juices that are found in a healthy, vigorous stomach.

Purchase a package of these wonderful digestors from your druggist to-day for 50 cents and cure yourself of your dyspepsia. Send us your name and address, and we will forward you a sample package free. Address F. A. Stuart Company, 150 Stuart Building, Marshall, Mich.

Caruso Sketches Himself at Work Minus His Tight Collar

CARUSO FAT? NO, NO; IT EES HEES COLLAR!

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Enrico Caruso, Thomas F. Ryan and Mrs. Collis P. Huntington were among the many notables who returned to New York on the North German Lloyd steamship Kronprinzessin Cecile.

Mr. Ryan brought a grouch, too. To every reporter he replied: "No interview."

Caruso denied that he was fatter than last year, and declared that he was never in better vocal form. Caruso's interest seemed almost equally divided in denying the fat, showing off his increased command of English and escorting Enrico, who greeted him first in a singing letter from over the ocean.

"You've taken on weight Mr. Caruso," was the way the reporter put it.

"You are greatly mistaken," said the great tenor, very much mistaken. I weigh less than when I left New York."

"You don't look thinner," returned an insistent one.

Collar Makes Him Look Fat.

"It is this collar," said Caruso. "Zounds, my mam he made a mistake. See, it pinches. It makes my face look the fat."

"Just notice," observed a friend in locater vein, "Mr. Caruso is dilated speaking the English."

"I never studied it this Summer," said the singer musically.

The most exciting thing on the trip over, according to Caruso, was the day he won the ship's pool. There was $250 in it. He gave $200 of it to the sailors' sick benefit fund. He won it on a guess of 562 knots for the day's run of the log liner.

SIEGEL CO. TO GIVE $4000 TO AID CHARITY

The Henry Siegel Company has set aside the large sum of $4,000, which will be distributed among all the charities and institutions for benevolence in the New England States on February 28, 1910. The patrons of the company will have its apportionment left wholly to them.

The idea is unique. Hundreds of ballots have already been deposited in the handsome mission ballot boxes, over which one of the prettiest young women in the great store presides and explains the plan.

Each ten cents' worth of value in purchases issued receives a ballot. Then write in any [illegible] and deposit it in the ballot box, which is near [illegible] Parlor on the second floor.

Special provision has been made for out-of-town and casual customers. Charge customers may write their nominations at the bottom of their bill when they pay it, and the names out of town may send in their sales slip with designated choice on the bottom of it.

The distribution will be made on this [illegible] basis: [illegible] votes, $200; next largest number, $100; to [illegible] next thirty-four, $25 each; next one hundred and fifty, $15 each, making a grand total of $4,000.

Nothing succeeds like circulation. The AMERICAN has quantity and quality.

STARS PRAISE NEW BOSTON OPERA HOUSE

Grand opera singers are assembling in Boston in preparation for the opening of the season at the new Boston Opera House. Miss Alice Nielsen, Mme. Gadski and Mme. Nordica are already here, and Florencio Constantino is due to arrive to-day or to-morrow.

Miss Nielsen, who has apartments on Gainsboro street, has just completed a concert tour including Indianapolis, Denver and Chicago. She scored a triumph in each of those cities. She received the hearty plaudits of 4,000 persons at the big Auditorium at Denver.

Mesdames Gadski and Nordica visited the new opera house and each was enthusiastic in praise of its arrangements and acoustic qualities. Each said that it is by far the best opera house in the United States and superior to any on the European continent, excepting possibly the new Prinz Regenten at Munich and the Wagner Festival Theatre at Bayreuth.

Mme. Nordica, who sang at the rehearsal, said that the new theatre is of the highest excellence in every particular. "The stage," she said, "is un rêve and comfortable as to remind one of a drawing room. I like the soft tones and genial brightness in the decorations of the house. I think the Opera House in every way superior to the Comedie Francaise in Paris."

"The new opera house," said Mme. Gadski, "is wonderfully fine. It is superior to the Metropolitan in New York, especially as to the stage. Boston has done a fine thing for opera and should feel proud of its achievement."

THOUSANDS IN PARIS MOB COURT AS TRIAL OF 'RED WIDOW' BEGINS

PARIS, Nov. 3.—Mme. Marguerite Steinheil, France's "tragic widow," was placed on trial to-day for the murder of her husband and her stepmother, Mrs. Japy.

Before the trial is ended it is declared the mystery surrounding the death of President Faure, who is said to have actually died or to have been fatally stricken in Mme. Steinheil's home, will be cleared for once and for all.

All night a vast crowd of men and women waited at the gates of the Palais de Justice in spite of the announcement by the presiding magistrate that none of the merely curious would be admitted to the trial chamber.

The scene resembled those at the height of the Dreyfus case. A heavy force of police formed the crowd in. In spite of their efforts the crowd was in a ferment constantly, women struggling for priority with men. The authorities were forced to lead some away from the crowd to save them, and to prevent further disorder. The night vigil of the women was in vain. No woman but Mlle. Miropolska, a lawyer, was admitted.

Prisoner Sti. Beautiful.

The sale of places in line went on merrily all night, and high sums were paid for good positions. By dawn thousands were crowded about the gates of the court house.

In her cell at the prison of St. Lazare the woman on whom centre the eyes of all France today, rose at 7:15 o'clock. As a result of the months of confinement and despite the favors which she has been shown at the jail, she looked pale and fatigued. She was still, however, the beauty who dictated many of the most illustrious men of France—the woman whose witchery has involved historic names in a mystery as complicated as any that ever baffled the police.

She was taken to the Palais de Justice in a speedy red motor car. An inspector of detectives in civilian clothes was at her side. At the automobile's slackened speed to get through the crowd, Mme. Steinheil was recognized, and mingled cheers and jeers rose in a mighty roar from the multitudes. She tried to hide herself. Protected by a strong force of police from friends and foes she was hurried to the temporary prison in the palais. There she remained till the opening of the case before the presiding magistrate, M. De Valles.

Faces Her Terrible Ordeal.

At 11 o'clock a light luncheon was served to the prisoner. Half an hour later she left the small cell, and through a secret corridor was led to the court room, her to face her terrible ordeal—the ordeal of a woman suspected of a double murder whose horror shocked the world; the ordeal of a woman whose supporters and enemies have divided the land into factions as sharply drawn as those which were created by the Dreyfus case.

While she was waiting in the room adjoining the Court of Assizes she was calm throughout. Now and then in a pose she showed the bravado which has led those who believe in her guilt to dub her the most shameless woman criminal of the age.

She had been there but a short time when M. de Valles said in a low voice: "Bring in the prisoner." As he spoke he observed. As Mme. Steinheil entered the court, for a moment her face went deadly pale. Contrasting with her black dress, of simple cut, her complexion, marked by the "prison pallor," looked ghastly. If the momentary loss of composure was the thing of an actress, it was effective; if natural, the prisoner recalled possession of herself quickly.

Scrutinized the Jurymen.

She dropped almost listlessly into a chair and from under the brim of her round black hat scrutinized the veniremen fiercely as they were called for examination for jury service.

Every phase of the case has already been gone over in great detail by the accused woman. When her attorney, Maitre Aylesbury Adolphe, began the examination of the veniremen to-day he had at his side many documents, every scrap of paper relating to the charges against his client. Each of these, the lawyer says, more than 3,000 was carefully annotated by Miss Steinheil, who spent months of her imprisonment on the task.

The plea of the defence is that Mme. Steinheil, cultured, accomplished, a wit and a beauty and withal one that goes to show the tender spot in Paris fashionable salon, could have had no motive for the perpetration of the horrible crimes of which she is accused.

MANY SELECT PREMIUMS AS WEDDING GIFTS

If expressions of callers at the Boston American Premium Department may be taken as a criterion, then the month of November is destined to be a month replete with weddings both in Boston and the surrounding territory.

Of the several hundreds of callers at the pretty display room on the fifth floor of the Boston American building, a great majority expressed the intention of acquiring one or more of the handsome premiums for the purpose of making wedding gifts of them. Of course, there were many who wanted them for their own use, either at home or in their places of business, or else in the premiums to go the increase every week. A display of the premiums opened in Middleport at the cigar and newspaper store of A. A. Miller, right in Madden square, on No. 125 Main street, attracted a great deal of attention, a crowd collecting around the window at frequent intervals.

The display at Kimball & Co.'s drug store in Everett square also attracted crowds, and there is a great demand for displays in many localities.

It is impossible to say which of the four articles so far announced has been the greatest hit with the readers of the Boston American, the Sewing Will Rock, the Venetian Lamp, the Library Lamp or the Morris Chair. But every one of them prizes are in store.

The one way left for Boston American followers right now is to clip the household economy coupon which appears daily and Sunday on Page 2 of every edition.

Thirty coupons of consecutive dates and a small cash payment is all that is required to obtain any of the premiums, but the coupons must be of consecutive dates.

GET BUSY. SAVE THE COUPONS. START TO-DAY. START ANY DAY—BUT SAVE THE COUPONS FOR THIRTY CONSECUTIVE DAYS. THEN PRESENT THEM TO THE PREMIUM DEPARTMENT OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN AND WITH A SMALL CASH PAYMENT THEY WILL BE HONORED FOR ANY OF THE PREMIUMS, WHETHER ANNOUNCED OR NOT.

MARTIANS RUSHING WORK UPON CANALS

FLAGSTAFF, Ari., Nov. 3.—The Lowell observatory telegraphs that the recent exceptional reports about Mars have no basis in fact. Professor Percival Lowell says:

"The development of the canal system has progressed regularly during the past three April to the present moment. Canals not before seen have appeared complete and persistent. These also have been photographed. This very important deduction shows that what we see as canals is undergoing construction or adaptation at the present moment."

WARDEN IN COURT.

An election warden, Robert F. Hyde of No. 764 Columbia road, Dorchester, who voted in Precinct 6 of Ward 16, was opposed before Judge A. Nathan Williams in the Roxbury Police Court to-day of having been intoxicated at the polls. He was committed for a hearing Friday.

JAILING GOMPERS WILL NOT END STRUGGLE FOR JUSTICE, SAYS LABOR

The Executive Committee of the Massachusetts State Branch of the American Federation of Labor, through its secretary-treasurer, Dennis D. Driscoll, issued the following statement to-day concerning the decision in the case of Gompers, Morrison and Mitchell:

"The fight for labor's constitutional right for free speech and a free press will not end with the jailing of Gompers, Morrison and Mitchell, if they unfortunately are jailed.

"This is more than a purely labor question. It is a question that affects all classes, in all sections of the country. The people as a whole are concerned in its outcome. The daily press as well as the labor press, would be vitally affected by the ruling were it permitted to stand.

People Supreme Rulers.

"If the United States Supreme Court does not reverse the decision the people will. The right of free speech and a free press cannot be denied by any court while the people themselves are still the supreme rulers of the land."

President Michael A. Murphy of the Boston Central Labor Union gave out the following statement to-day on the Gompers decision:

"The highest courts in our land once ruled that a white man had the right to own a black man, but a sovereign people reversed that decision. They also will reverse this decision."

As stated by Judge Sheppard in his dissenting opinion, The injunction order was null and void because it opposed the constitutional provision concerning freedom of speech and a free press.

"And because of that fact, Gompers, Morrison and Mitchell were well within their constitutional rights when discussing the former ruling of Judge Wright, for which they have been held in contempt of court."

Will Arouse All Classes.

The board of adjustment of the building trades section of the Boston Central Labor Union adopted the following statement regarding the affirmation of the jail sentence of Messrs. Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison at a special meeting: "It is clearly evident that American workingmen will have to go to jail in order to establish the right of free speech and a free press, which they supposed was guaranteed to all under the Constitution, but which has been denied organized labor under this ruling by the courts of to-day.

"Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison in jail will arouse all classes to the danger of the situation.

"When passed upon by the final court of appeals, the people, the right of free speech and a free press will be established so firmly that no court will ever dare to question that right so long as government shall exist upon the North American continent."

This was signed by John T. Walsh, president; J. C. MacDonald, secretary, and Arthur M. Huddell, treasurer of the board.

HENEY LOSES, FRISCO TO BE YANKEE PARIS

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 3.—After three years of reform government which followed the bribery graft disclosures in the Ruef and Schmitz union labor administration in 1906-07, San Francisco has again chosen a union labor administration, by electing P. H. McCarthy Mayor and Charles M. Fickert district attorney.

Opposed to Fickert was Francis J. Heney, who, for three years, has conducted the bribery graft prosecutions.

Mr. Heney's defeat was decisive, his vote running behind that of W. H. Crocker, Republican, for Mayor, and that of Dr. T. W. B. Leland, Democrat.

Continuance of the graft prosecutions was the dominant issue. Mr. Heney promised, if elected, to carry on the prosecution with unabated vigor. Mr. Fickert says that he will prosecute only such of these cases as can probably be carried to a successful result.

The opposition to McCarthy rallied around his own statement from the stump that if elected he would make San Francisco the "Paris of America." This declaration was relied upon as meaning he would stand for a return to the "wide open" town.

In conceding his defeat to-day Mr. Heney said:

"The first battle for equality before the law has been fought and lost, but the war against graft will continue to be waged by all true workers who have been fighting with me in the great cause of common honesty, common decency and civic righteousness. We have been defeated in this election, but the sober, moral sense of the community will again reassert itself and San Francisco will vindicate herself before the world."

MENACING FIRE AT DARTMOUTH

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 3.—The chemical laboratory in Culver Hall, Dartmouth College, was the scene of an extremely dangerous fire early to-day, the loss being $1,500.

At about 3 o'clock the alarm sounded and scores of students rushed to the scene. The fire was found to be in the laboratory storeroom.

The effective work of the fire department, assisted by the students, prevented it from spreading further. The exploding chemicals made the fight dangerous. The cause is not known.

DEMOCRATS LEAD INDIANA FIGHTS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 3.—A majority of the mayoralty contests in Indiana were won by Democrats, but in Indianapolis the entire Republican city ticket was elected by decreased pluralities. Charles A. Vanes, Democrat, was a 10 to 8 favorite in the betting at the close of the polls, but was defeated by Lew Shank, an auctioneer, Republican by 1,000 votes.

LANGFORD KNOCKS KLONDIKE OUT IN SECOND ROUND

Hooray! Hooray! Baron Mooch Is Free Again—By Herriman

DONOVAN IS NOW IN CHARGE OF RED SOX

Patsy Donovan, for more than twenty years a familiar figure in baseball, is now manager of the Red Sox, having assumed the duties of leadership yesterday afternoon after a long conference with President John I. Taylor.

Fred Lake, who made near champions out of the Boston American League team, turned over the bridge of office together with all hopes thereunto attached, to his successor and is now a free agent. It is likely that he will connect with some minor league team within the next few days, in a managerial capacity.

The selection of Donovan gives satisfaction to the fans of Boston, who have it figured out that he is the man to complete the work of Lake and put the Red Sox in shape to make another fight for the pennant.

He is an experienced baseball man, and when in the game was one of the greatest players of his day. With the material now at hand, it is believed he will make the best team a contender in the race right from the beginning of the season.

The new manager was in the Red Sox during the past season in the capacity of scout, and already has a line on a number of promising players that will soon sign Boston contracts.

Patrick J. Donovan was born in Lawrence, Mass., March 16, 1865. He began his professional career with the New England League club of his native city in 1883, and played with that club in the following year until it disbanded. He then played the season with the Salem team. In 1888 and 1889 he played with the London (Ont.) club, and the International association in batting in 1888. Frank Selee secured him for the Boston club in 1890. He was transferred to Brooklyn early in the season, succeeding Corkhill in the outfield, and at once took front rank as an outfielder, hitter and base runner.

After brief engagements to Louisville and Washington, he joined the Pittsburgs in 1893, and remained with them until after the consolidation with the Louisvilles in 1900, when he assumed the management of the St. Louis club. After four years with the Robinsons, he took the management of the Washington club of the American League, but retired at the close of the season of 1901, and remained out of baseball the next year on account of ill health. In the Fall of 1902 he signed to manage the Brooklyn club, and remained with the "Trolley Dodgers" through the season of 1905, when he was given his unconditional release.

JEFFRIES MAY TAKE ON FLYNN AND TONY ROSS

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Sam Berger is authority for the statement that Jeffries will take on one or two big fellows before he meets Jack Johnson next July for the heavyweight championship of the world. If Jeff is sincere in his desire to have a real tryout, there are quite a number of gents around who would be able to give the big fellow a tussle.

A statement in the papers yesterday said that he would take on two men for three rounds each before a Philadelphia club. It was thought that Jim Flynn and Tony Ross would be the pair. Flynn really would give the big fellow a tussle, but at that Jeff should have no trouble. Ross would stick there, too, but is about as dangerous as a crippled child.

If Jeff wants a real tryout and is anxious to have a good fight, why not hook up with Al Kaufmann or Jack O'Brien for the six rounds—go take on Kaufmann one week for six rounds and then O'Brien the next week for six rounds. The latter would never bother Jeff. He might give a grand exhibition for that limit, but as far as punishment is concerned he would not trouble the big fellow for a second.

Kaufmann is not a short distance fighter. He can hit and is a good puncher, but if he's got anything left after the New York bad League club of his native city in 1883, and played with that club in the following year until it disbanded. He then played the season with the Salem team. In 1888 and 1889 he played with the London (Ont.) club, and the International association in batting in 1888. Frank Selee secured him for the Boston club in 1890. WOLGAST MAY GET MATCH WITH POWELL

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Ad Wolgast is likely to get a match with Lew Powell on the coast. Powell, who has been picked by Cofroth as the next lightweight champion, wants the right to be 133 pounds at seven o'clock. Hester, of the Mission A. C. of Kansas City, has signed to meet the loser of the Brooklyn club, and remained with the "Trolley Dodgers" through the season of 1905, when he was given his unconditional release.

HOCKEY
RINK NOTES

Several of the minor colleges will take up hockey sport for the first time this Winter. Wesleyan College is one of the latter, and is going in for the game with enthusiasm, hoping eventually to rival Williams' team. Trinity College has trained at Middletown for a couple of years, and has developed a team that will be a regular terror. This Winter there will be a regular team, and the first sport will have an organization of its own.

The St. Nicholas skating rink in New York opened this week for the Winter season, and in front of the rink is a Brown's Mercury Association of the New York Driving Club.

For a number of years the Intercollegiate Hockey Association has been in existence, but has completed not of rules. It has now adopted the rules of the International Hockey League, with a few exceptions. The principle change is in regard to the length of the game. If the contest ends in a tie at the end of the two regular periods, an extra period of ten minutes will be played. If the score is still a tie, play will continue till a score is made.

Work on the concrete foundations of the new Boston Arena is progressing finely, it is said. The arena will make a strong bid for a number of the big hockey games this season, including the Big Game.

The hockey team of the New York Athletic Club has received a challenge from the St. Paul's Hockey Club of Toronto, which has just been admitted to the Toronto Hockey League last Winter. A similar challenge was received last year too late to be accepted, and the Canadians are not waiting for the match to arrive before issuing another challenge.

With Boston's new ice hockey rink opened in a couple of months, the Boston Athletic Association will be in nothing. They hope that a strong all-star team can be organized.

Hockey is trying to gain on Polo and Ketchel for another fight. Parke is willing.

Ad Wolgast announces that he is through with the battle-royals in which he has been engaging on the road with Joe Mans. He would like a debate with Packey McFarland.

A Western product says the club that gets the big mill will have to fork out at least $100,000 and probably more. It is a cinch that if they get it.

Hot Nelson is having a verbal scrap with Packey McFarland. Nelson made Packey back up in an argument here some time ago, and has the bride of the present bout.

Billy Papke is now a regular in the Limelight by challenging Ketchel and making matches with second and third raters.

Chicago is getting over the announcement that Johnson is to make that town his permanent home. The storms and blizzards have calmed down.

Bob Fitzsimmons is a Border Bill Speaks. He is keen on the carpet for Australia. If both are allowed to enter the ring, it will be a great contest.

CLABBY AND MORROW DRAW

CANYON HARBOR, Nebr., Nov. 2.—Howard Morrow of this city fought Jimmy Clabby a ten-round draw. Backers of Clabby who came to see him put the bout lost out in a few rounds were disappointed. Clabby delivered a number of telling uppercuts, but Morrow showed good stirring powers.

The semi-bingers of eight rounds between Cyp Carter of Boston and Spike Keller of Chicago went the limit, Carter having a shade the better.

JOHNSON WILL FIGHT LANGFORD

Champ Accepts Boston Man's Challenge

Jack Johnson and Sam Langford in a battle for the championship of the world is the next big fight on the tapis.

Langford has challenged the conqueror of Ketchel, Johnson has accepted upon conditions which can easily be met, and unless some unlooked for hitch arises in the negotiations, Jeffries may not have to fight for the world title next July.

Joonson announced in Chicago last night that he would box Langford when the indecorous were hung up, and it appears non to be up to some club to make a suitable offer to clinch the match.

The proposed battle is the outcome of a challenge sent to Johnson and his backer, George Little, last Saturday by Joe Wood man, manager of Langford. Woodman offered to make the champion a present of $1,000 the moment he entered the ring with Langford, Johnson to name the length of the fight, choose the club, stipulate the division of the gate receipts, take all or any one that suits the big fellow.

In reply to this George Little, who, besides being the champion's backer, looks after his business affairs, replied:

"The only way I will consider the proposition for a match is for Mr. Woodman, who represents Langford, posts $10,000 cash with some responsible party to guarantee me as well as the public of the honesty of his intentions. I must make this demand imperative, because we have had a lot of experience of late with so-called boxers who announced that they want to meet Johnson. After clearing up the coups would be rolled off.

This was put up to Woodman in the ROBSTON AMERICAN Saturday afternoon and he immediately wired Johnson over the Hearst leased wire that he would post the $10,000 forfeit if the match could be arranged.

With this was sent a proposition made Woodman by the National Sporting Club of London, offering a purse that would suit even the champion, provided Johnson would apologize to the club for breaking the match with Langford last May.

Johnson Says He Will Fight.

Johnson this morning wired the following to the BOSTON AMERICAN:

That will be all right, as it is what I've demanded of Langford as for my apologizing to the National Sporting Club, that is certainly a matter nought. I have done nothing for which an apology is due, and under similar circumstances what would any gentleman do? That's my exactly what I shall do.

I don't know that I would care much about boxing Langford in England anyway just at this time. I'd have to think that over. Perhaps if we were matched, we could do just as well in this country. I think that I would suit Langford and Woodman to be matched with me now at Reno or in England with that fine endorsement.

I will box Langford when the inducements are lined up, and until I can definitely what the London club would do for us, I could not give a definite answer to Woodman.

When shown Johnson's telegram Woodman said he would post the $10,000 forfeit to-day with any responsible man or newspaper which was satisfactory to Johnson and Little.

Will Post Forfeit.

"It really looks as if we were going to catch up with Johnson at last, and we have been after him ever since he defeated Burns. The posting of the forfeit is the least of our troubles as every sporting man in the country knows that Langford never gives that much to get a crack at Johnson.

Johnson appears to be no valid reason for the match not being closed, and the battle being pulled off within next sixty or ninety days. There is nothing in the agreement between Johnson and Jeffries that prevents either man from fighting before the time for them to meet next July, and Johnson and Langford are both in such condition that they are tending put them in fine shape for the fray.

LANGFORD KNOCKS OUT KLONDIKE IN THE SECOND ROUND

Sam Langford, the only rival champion Jack Johnson has outside of Jeffries, conquered the Klondike, or rather a big giant Ethiopean by that name, at the Armory A. A. last night, doing the trick in two rounds. It was another one-sided contest for the local colored wonder has on his long list of victories, as the Chicago Sandow, as his opponent is called, proved to be more punishable than the average pork chops.

The dusky Chicago man was terrible in name only. As a fighter he was decidedly a false alarm, and as for his much exploited forerunner in the local ring, no longer will he cast a shadow over the fighting name of Johnson, who, he claimed, was one of his victims when the title holder was just starting in business.

It was a joke match, as Langford was the only real thing in the ring. Klondike was a mere punching bag for Ho Ho, and not once did the colored conqueror of the world last him for a long period.

Knockout Delayed.

That Sam should have ended the agony for Klondike in the first round was the feeling all around, for big as the Chicago smoketack appeared, he was a mere babe in the hands of such a master at the Queensberry game as Langford.

Only once did the colored Goliath lay a glove on Sam with any effect, and that was purely an accident. It happened in the first round, when one of Klondike's swings smote Langford's neck and mid him to his knees. Sam was so surprised he forgot to spring to his toes and he got up leisurely while a wide grin spread over his swarthy features.

That little mishap was enough for Sam. The way he chopped the black hulk in front of him to pieces was as bad as a slaughter house exhibition, and the fighter with the good district name spent most of his time in doing some of the greatest life-saving antics that was ever seen on the stage. He endowed Langford most affectionately as if he was a long lost brother, after Sam had sent both hands in his framework and before the bell count for the call for a respite after the first round Klondike was rolling in the resined floor of the ring, while the fans got busy preparing to get an early start for home, as it needed no announcement that the bout would terminate shortly, but the sequins were delayed till the second round.

Langford Got Busy.

There was no doubting the intentions of Langford when the gong got the pair out of their corners for the second act, for he tore into the clumsy mountain with more hooks draining the huge lumps, and Klondike was more grasping in his nature than ever.

Langford made one vicious uppercut which would have elevated the cool Ethiopian fighter several feet off the earth had it connected, but it missed by inches, although the fans thought it was on Sam and started him on to greater activity.

Sam took the jaw made Klondike look weary and a few jabs in the body sent him in a position for Langford to work one on the jaw, and Klondike dropped like a log over the Hearst leased wire that he would post the $10,000 forfeit if the match could be arranged.

With this was sent a proposition made Woodman by the National Sporting Club of London, offering a purse that would suit even the champion, provided Johnson would apologize to the club for breaking the match with Langford last May.

Johnson Says He Will Fight.

That will be all right, as it is what I've demanded of Langford as for my apologizing to the National Sporting Club, that is certainly a matter nought. I have done nothing for which an apology is due, and under similar circumstances what would any gentleman do? That's my exactly what I shall do.

I don't know that I would care much about boxing Langford in England anyway just at this time. I'd have to think that over. Perhaps if we were matched, we could do just as well in this country. I think that I would suit Langford and Woodman to be matched with me now at Reno or in England with that fine endorsement.

I will box Langford when the inducements are lined up, and until I can definitely what the London club would do for us, I could not give a definite answer to Woodman.

When shown Johnson's telegram Woodman said he would post the $10,000 forfeit to-day with any responsible man or newspaper which was satisfactory to Johnson and Little.

Will Post Forfeit.

"It really looks as if we were going to catch up with Johnson at last, and we have been after him ever since he defeated Burns. The posting of the forfeit is the least of our troubles as every sporting man in the country knows that Langford never gives that much to get a crack at Johnson.

Johnson appears to be no valid reason for the match not being closed, and the battle being pulled off within next sixty or ninety days. There is nothing in the agreement between Johnson and Jeffries that prevents either man from fighting before the time for them to meet next July, and Johnson and Langford are both in such condition that they are tending put them in fine shape for the fray.

LANGFORD KNOCKS OUT KLONDIKE IN THE SECOND ROUND

Sam Langford, the only rival champion Jack Johnson has outside of Jeffries, conquered the Klondike, or rather a big giant Ethiopean by that name, at the Armory A. A. last night, doing the trick in two rounds. It was another one-sided contest for the local colored wonder has on his long list of victories, as the Chicago Sandow, as his opponent is called, proved to be more punishable than the average pork chops.

The dusky Chicago man was terrible in name only. As a fighter he was decidedly a false alarm, and as for his much exploited forerunner in the local ring, no longer will he cast a shadow over the fighting name of Johnson, who, he claimed, was one of his victims when the title holder was just starting in business.

It was a joke match, as Langford was the only real thing in the ring. Klondike was a mere punching bag for Ho Ho, and not once did the colored conqueror of the world last him for a long period.

Knockout Delayed.

That Sam should have ended the agony for Klondike in the first round was the feeling all around, for big as the Chicago smoketack appeared, he was a mere babe in the hands of such a master at the Queensberry game as Langford.

Only once did the colored Goliath lay a glove on Sam with any effect, and that was purely an accident. It happened in the first round, when one of Klondike's swings smote Langford's neck and mid him to his knees. Sam was so surprised he forgot to spring to his toes and he got up leisurely while a wide grin spread over his swarthy features.

That little mishap was enough for Sam. The way he chopped the black hulk in front of him to pieces was as bad as a slaughter house exhibition, and the fighter with the good district name spent most of his time in doing some of the greatest life-saving antics that was ever seen on the stage. He endowed Langford most affectionately as if he was a long lost brother, after Sam had sent both hands in his framework and before the bell count for the call for a respite after the first round Klondike was rolling in the resined floor of the ring, while the fans got busy preparing to get an early start for home, as it needed no announcement that the bout would terminate shortly, but the sequins were delayed till the second round.

Langford Got Busy.

There was no doubting the intentions of Langford when the gong got the pair out of their corners for the second act, for he tore into the clumsy mountain with more hooks draining the huge lumps, and Klondike was more grasping in his nature than ever.

Langford made one vicious uppercut which would have elevated the cool Ethiopian fighter several feet off the earth had it connected, but it missed by inches, although the fans thought it was on Sam and started him on to greater activity.

CORNELL OUT TO PUT BIG CRIMP IN HARVARD TEA M

HARVARD TEAM BOOKED FOR SURPRISE WHEN IT PLAYS WITH CORNELL

That Harvard will have harder work defeating Cornell than it expects is the view of many football experts who have kept their eye on Cornell this season. The Ithacans have played possibly all along, not even uncovering their plays in the Williams game. Cornell means to defeat Harvard this year and consequently are saving and indicating as little as possible how they intend to do it. John Moakley is famous for eleventh hour surprises and is likewise noted for a close-mouthed but hard-hitting policy.

Cornell has the weight if not the ability to give the Crimson such a battle as Harvard has not entered this season. Brown, with a weaker and lighter line, held in Crimson twice near their goal line. Cornell's eleven averages 180 pounds, 180 pounds from end to end and 195 pounds from tackle to tackle. Furthermore, the New York boys have an assortment of ends equal to the Crimson's. Their aggregation of end material consists of eight men, Hurlburt, Crosby, Teague, McArthur, Kelley, Stevenson, Seely and Frankle. Hurlburt and Crosby, the first string men, are fast and accurate. They are backed by the New York college, Steele and Weeks, are fully as strong as Fish and McKay, and should be able to hold their opponents. O'Connor and Donovan average more in weight than the Crimson guards, but the center, Seagrave, who is the lightest man on the team, is greatly overweighed by Paul Withington.

The Cornell team, which was somewhat crippled in the Williams game, is now in perfect condition. Steele, whose injury kept him out of the Williams game, will play against Harvard next Saturday, unless Allen School vs. Lawrence Academy at West Newton.

Boston College High vs. High School of Commerce at the American League grounds.
Rock Ridge Hall vs. Lincoln High at Wellesley.
Haverhill High vs. Methuen High at Haverhill.

O'Connor, the left guard, who is a Boston boy, bids fair to distinguish himself on his native heath next Saturday. The Indian coaches have transformed O'Connor from a lone toe pounding raw stager to a polished product equal to any of the Crimson guards.

Cornell will be guided largely this year by the coaching of Schenkopf, the great Crimson fullback, who is thoroughly acquainted with the system used by Yoach Haughton, and is preparing to give him better.

The Cornell team is by no means as green as it is painted. It is true that many of the men came from the Freshman team, but Cornell's development this year has been slow, but sure, and it is just this fact, coupled with Cornell's determination to put up a good fight, that prevents the conclusion from being foregone next Saturday.

STRAIGHT DOPE
FOR SPORT FANS

COMMENCING NEXT MONDAY THE loyal followers of the little game can settle for themselves whether or not Johnson was faking when he went to the door in the now famous Colma fight between the black champion and Ketchel. The moving pictures will be put on at the American Music Hall at the afternoon show Monday, and with interest in the pugilistic game almost at fever heat in Boston, you can bet it three ways from the jack that the fans will look them over. The assembly English of the fight has been widely discussed, and even those who sat at the ringside are far apart in their opinions as to whether Ketchel scored a legitimate knockdown, or whether the crafty negro feigned the knock-down to lead the Michigan man into a trap which was his undoing. A third view of it is that the whole finish was faked in order to make the pictures more valuable. When the sport writers who saw the mix can't agree, I don't know which is right, so I am going to look them over and see if I can agree with myself.

BOSTON IS VERY MUCH ON THE sporting map these Fall days, with Sam Langford in our midst, and the Johnson-Ketchel fight pictures, the Nelson-Hyland fight pictures, and Langford himself coming Monday. Another champ who must not be overlooked is Walter Willoughy, the Dedham lad the middleweight wrestling title, who will be seen in a hard finish at the Columbia to night against Young Sandow, an old rival. It looks like a lengthy

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Dear Sir—Knowing you to be an exponent of fair play, I take the liberty of asking you to insert a note of the following in your fabulous column. Thanking you in advance, I am, Yours truly,
The Spoiler Team has had team of South Boston to advertise as going to be the best played on its surface for some time. I know nothing about this game and naturally a manager would, but imagine some other team will appear, playing under the name of Cambridge Five.
As we earned a very good reputation last season we are not anxious to set the same aside by another team getting by on it, or rather, using it to get by on. Therefore, we look to the good of the game and think that an exposure of this kind will be to the only gentlemanly benefit, but also all other independent teams.
The Cambridge Five has not as yet organized for the coming season, but expects to get together in a few weeks, even stronger than last year.
We feel that you will help us in this matter, and thanking you, I am, Respectfully yours,
IRVING W. MERRILL.

A good reputation in any line of sport is something to be guarded with care, and as that is what you are evidently trying to do I'll help you along what little I may. If your organization has the best right to the name, the other team should not be prevented from using it, and there is little doubt but what the Notre Dames would join with you when the facts are made known to them.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Dear Sir—Kindly date to your column that the Elmwood A. C. of Everett, after a most successful season, is now ready to arrange games for Thanksgiving Day and Saturday afternoons during November, and would like to hear from Quincy, Mass., 44 Waverly avenue, Everett, Mass.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Dear Sir—Will you please answer these questions. Did Abe Attell ever fight Nelson? If so, when, where and how did he come out? If no decision was given who had the best of the argument? Yours truly,
MICHAEL GROSSAVEN.
No. 65 Fort avenue, Roxbury.

Attell and Nelson boxed six rounds in Philadelphia March 22, 1905, and no decision was given. They met again March 31, 1908, going fifteen rounds to a draw in San Francisco. I didn't see either bout and can't tell you who had the better of it in the first, and the referee's decision goes for me. Ed.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Is there any place in your columns where you can settle a point? Kindly let me know and oblige a friend and myself. The question is, Do professional and amateurs actually receive exactly the same purse when they take part in a boxing contest? Your early answer through these columns will greatly oblige

ST. MARK'S PLAY GROTON TODAY

A record-breaking crowd is expected to witness the annual football game between Groton and St. Mark's to-day at Southboro, and as both teams have been playing a good game this season and look capable of putting up a stubborn contest, a great game is looked for.

St. Mark's never had a better chance to secure a win over the Groton boys than they have this year, as the school is represented on the gridiron by a team superior to any that has ever played under the school's colors.

For six years St. Mark's has tried to down Groton, its greatest rival, without success, but both the team and the entire student body are of the opinion that the trick will be turned to-day.

BOWDOIN FOOTBALL PLAYERS BELOW RANK

BRUNSWICK, Me., Nov. 3.—Rumor has it that at the Bowdoin faculty meeting, the mid-term report of ranks showed two members of the football squad had fallen below the required mark and they probably will be out of the game the rest of the season. As the warning has not been sent out the matter will not be discussed by either faculty or the football men. It has been expected that three of the freshmen members of the squad, two playing regularly and one as substitute, might receive warnings. All have studied hard, and thought they passed the last examinations.

LEWIS TO LEAD CRIMSON FRESHIES

Richard Plimpton Lewis of Walpole has been elected captain of the Harvard freshmen football eleven, on which he played at end and in the backfield. He comes from Exeter, where he made quite a reputation as an all-round athlete, playing fullback two years on the eleven and catching two years on the baseball nine. He was also a member of the track team. He weighs about 180 pounds.

DEDHAM, Nov. 3.—East Boston High and Dedham High played a 0 to 0 game here. Dedham in the second half had the ball on east Dedham's two-yard line, but on account of the wet weather there was much fumbling on both sides.

KLING AND REULBACH MAY GO TO GIANTS

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—President Charles W. Murphy of the Cubs is reported to be ready to closeup a big baseball deal. Although the local magnate vigorously denied reports from Gotham to the effect that Catcher John Kling was to be traded to the Giants, it is now believed that some sort of arrangement has been practically decided upon by which the Cubs' receiver and backstop will be transferred to New York.

The reports from the East last week were that Kling and Reulbach were to be traded to Pitcher Wiltse and $7,000. Rumor from well informed sources has it that the deal will not be closed, but that Murphy will likely get more money than the one mentioned.

Polydore the Palmist
HE HAS A NARROW ESCAPE

By IRVING R. BACON

Any other undoubtedly would have met with a violent death. That Professor Polydore escaped such a fate was due entirely to his knowledge of palmistry. But, then, let the facts speak for themselves.

The Professor was on his way to a fashionable function at which he was to be the star attraction, when it occurred to him that he was sorely in need of a shave. Usually he performed this service for himself, but as he was tolled from home and the hour late, he stepped into the first barber shop he encountered. Fortune was kind. There was one vacant chair. The Professor dropped into this and was at once taken in hand by the barber.

A casual glance at the tonsorial artist had given Professor Polydore the impression that he was tall, thin and amiable-featured. Satisfied with this hasty inventory, the Professor dismissed the man from his thoughts and at once began to lose himself in a pleasant reverie in which he recalled in the commonplace details of life by a dash of lather in his nostrils, shutting off his breath so suddenly that he almost choked.

Rabid Politician.

"Pardon me!" exclaimed the barber, flip ping the lather episode into an ing wedge for conversation. He threw while the Good-getter's loquacity and put an effectual stop to the Professor's meditations.

olitics appeared to be the barber's main ern. He was a rabid advocate for party in power.

"I hold," he said, poising the end of the ds directly over Polydore's right eye, hold that those in office ought to be ntinued in office. That's why I'm all about ir being grafters and thieves in all business. What if they are? Any idiot ght to be able to see that it is better t keep them at the helm than to elect a new set, about whom we don't know beans.

"As Hamlet says, 'It's a heap sight better to grunt along on the fardels we've got than to be born in an undiscovered country where odds bothkins that we don't know anything about are apt to hit us in the neck,' or words to that effect."

"I'm afraid that big lump of lather is going to drop into my eye," murmured Polydore apologetically.

Shooting the lather onto Polydore's Adam's apple, the barber proceeded:

"You see, it's just this way; a man can hold just so much. It's the same as with a pail—when it's full, it can't hold any more. There ain't a statesman living that can contradict that. I may not be much on talking, but when it comes to an argument I'm all there."

Professor Polydore was losing patience rapidly.

"I suppose," he said, "that what you mean is that the citizens can trust the men now in office because they have glutted themselves with graft and, like the full pails, are not likely to take any more."

Grafters Are Tanks.

"Yes, precisely," replied the lather expert.

"Well, an office-holder who is a thief is not a pail at all," snapped Polydore. "He is a tank of the Danaids, if you know what that is. It is tank that has no bottom. Honest citizens are so last awake to the fact that these scoundrels have to get out and"

The barber, having finished the lathering process, was now polishing. He held a razor between his thumb and forefinger, and the palm of his hand showed plainly just above the face of the Professor. He saw that the thumb was of the clubbed type. This is known in palmistry as "the murderer's thumb." The appellation is somewhat unjust, for it is rarely that possessors of clubbed thumbs kill. They are usually good-natured people, but have a terrible temper. And it is only when the other indications in the hand are bad that it is a safe guess that, once aroused, they will not hesitate to bent an adversary to death.

The particular specimen which Professor Polydore was now looking at was of this dangerous kind. The hand was crimson, and the ball of the thumb—the so-called Mount of Venus—was fiery red and gritted; that is, it was crisscrossed with innumerable lines. The headline, moreover, was a merely rudimentary affair, extending less than a third of the way across the hand in a wavering, sizzag course. And to top it all, a poorly formed star appeared at the end of the line—a sure indication of mental explosion or brainstorm.

Fury and murder were written in large characters all over the hand.

Nothing quenches anger quicker than flattery. Professor Polydore was a past master in the art of blarney.

"And why not?" he used to say. "Flattery is a necessary compromise in a world in which for the most part only the sham friends of truth are successful, while the real friends are ignored, if they are not thrown into dungeons or crucified."

Never had Professor Polydore a greater incentive to flatter than now. He knew that the way he concluded his remarks would guide the razor to either shave him or cut his throat. With as calm composure as if the recognition of his peril had not occurred to him at all, the Professor finished his sentence thus:

"And so forth, and so forth. All that sort of mush that I've been quoting and that is being handed out to us at every street corner nowadays, is just what is causing the whole trouble. You have hit the nail squarely on the head. To put in a new set of office-holders would be like turning a lean and hungry horde into a banquet hall from which the fat, well fed guests have been driven. Nothing illustrates this better than your comparison with the full pail."

The razor descended gently.

Ten minutes later, when the Professor was leaving the place, clean shaven, a stranger who had also received tonsorial administrations said to him:

"I wouldn't let the fellow who shaved you put a razor to my throat for a million."

"He is a bit talkative," assented Polydore.

"No. I don't mean that exactly," said the stranger; "but for a while I thought he was going to cut your head off. I never saw so ferocious a look, except on the face of a madman."

The Aeroplane and Belinda
By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

THE aeroplane was marked so low Belinda had to buy it.

But when they sent it to the house, she found she couldn't fly it.

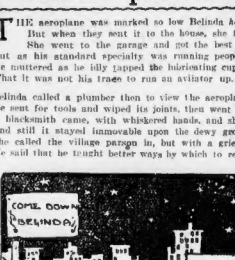
She went to the garage and got the best chauffeur in town,
But as his standard specialty was running people down.

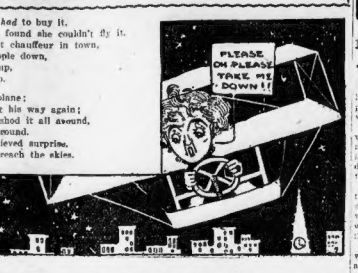
He muttered as he idly tapped the lubricating cup,
That it was not his trade to run an aviator up.

Belinda called a plumber then to view the aeroplane;
He sent for tools and wiped its joints, then went his way again;

A blacksmith came, with whispered hands, and shook it all around,
And still it stayed immovable upon the dewy ground.

She called the village parson in, but with a grieved surprise,
He said that he taught better ways by which to reach the skies.





At length Belinda took a vow to make her purchase sail,
And so, to learn to aviate, she took a course by mail.
And every time the postman came she seized an envelope,
And went to work at the machine with fresh and kindling hope.
And at the end of three brief weeks she climbed aboard one day,
Pulled sundry levers, wheels and valves, and briskly sailed away.

And now throughout the velvet night we pause and hark to hear
Belinda hurtling through the air upon her lone career.
Like Vanderdecken she is doomed to sail forevermore,

Being Womanly
WOMAN'S QUEST FOR HAPPINESS

ARTICLE NO. 5

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner

WHEN a woman has made herself a good comrade, a good sport and "a good fellow," she often finds herself in a position where she is expected to forget that she is also a good woman.

Men enjoy the society of the woman who is not too straight-laced; who does not preach, for one month, or rebuke by her demeanor; one who seems to understand their weaknesses, and condones them.

But when they meet such a woman they always test her to see how far her sympathies permit her to go, and whether she, too, has her weaknesses, which cause her to be so liberal toward their own faults.

And just here is where the womanly woman who has made herself companionable (knowing that in this ability to be man's comrade lies woman's greatest happiness) must reveal her true worth, her invincible principles, and her good sense.

If she is a single woman she must be tactful enough to keep men interested while she prevents them from placing her in any questionable situation, any position which would reflect upon her good name, or put an interrogation mark opposite her motives.

If she is a married woman she must know just where to draw the line between the admiration of men for her physical attractions and her accomplishments and the desire or possession and the greater admiration for her as an ideal wife and woman.

The Man's Opinion

Women who are loved and trusted by good husbands sometimes find such pleasure in being admired by men that they place their husbands in humiliating positions—situations where other men feel pity or contempt for them.

The man who has paid gallant attentions to such a woman for weeks oftimes goes to his room and says to himself, "Thank fate that woman is not my wife. It would be a sorry place for any man to occupy."

The woman who understands the real depths of the masculine mind will forego some passing triumphs and pleasures, and without prudery or foolish caution or undue argument will convince her men admirers that she values her clean name as a prudent wife and as a woman of good sense more than she values the empty compliments and fickle favors of other men. Men do not like women to preach to them.

While a man will leave the merely womanly good woman to be entertained by the amusing and ungood woman, he is always in his secret heart glad when he finds an amusing, entertaining woman, who is at the same time worthy of his highest respect, and he is always sorry and disappointed, however infatuated he may be, when he finds her one who has attracted him by her charms and accomplishments, praying weak in morals and low in ideals.

It is his nature to tempt every woman who attracts him; but it is also his nature to admire her when she resists his temptations.

The woman who has made herself thoroughly companionable, and who has kept her balance and stood by her principles at the same time, possesses untold power for doing good in the world. She has ten times the influence of clergymen and preachers. She is almost omnipotent.

A Role Worth Studying.

No silly woman, however beautiful, no woman genius who relies upon her intellect alone, no woman who wholly ignores the fashions and conventions, and no woman who is slave to them can possess this influence, which is wielded by the good sport, the good fellow, and the good woman, in one.

It may not always be counted without suffering for herself and others; human nature is full of strange unexplored realms of emotions; and the truest, purest and the best women are not always in command of their self-control.

Inflammable and passion are encountered where only common sense and friendship are expected, and the situation becomes tragic, when it is made to seem comic by fate and wisdom.

But however dangerous and however difficult the part, it is better and its opportunities far happier are greater than that of the neglected wife, the merely good woman who has allowed herself to grow uninteresting and dull, faded and old-fashioned, or who has relied upon her worth and intellect alone to bring her satisfaction.

Moral worth and intellect in a woman never yet kept her happy, or kept a man true to her, unless she combined other qualities and charms with those virtues.

The Mistakes of Courtship One Woman Made---By Dorothy Dix

"ALL ME!" sighed the middle-aged married woman, "how foolish girls are when they are in love!

"When I sit down and think of the reckless way in which I blundered into matrimony with a strange man of whose tastes, and habits, and thoughts, and crotchets, and whims of which I was as blissfully ignorant as if I had never set eyes on him saves them from the doom they have courted.

"I'd do some detective work to find out if my Romeo took some care of his clothes and other personal belongings."

"John and I were engaged three months and we spent long days and hours in heart to heart talks, but instead of trying to find out something about each other's character and disposition we put in the time billing and cooing like a pair of imbecile turtle doves.

"I often think, now, how differently I would act under the same circumstances if I were a girl again and engaged to be married, or if my beloved Joan should die and I should decide to take husband No. 2.

"In the first place I shouldn't put in a great deal of valuable time asking my fiance if he loved me. I should take it for granted that he did, or else he wouldn't want to marry me, and so I should improve the fleeting hour by asking him his views on the money question.

"For I should know that there are a few better proofs of affection that a man can give his wife than to be willing to divvy up with her, and that the only way to make matrimony a glad, sweet song is for the husband to consider it a privilege to work his fingers to the bones to provide his wife with glad raiment.

"The romance thing is good and proper in its place, but it isn't a substitute for a settled allowance and an open pocketbook.

"Nor would I worry myself any as to whether my particular HE had ever loved before, because, after all, it doesn't matter to a woman who was a man's first love if she is his last. What I would try to ascertain would be where he stood on the home platform and whether he was one of the men who think that home is only a place to go to when every place else shuts up, or whether he proposes to be a fireside ornament.

"It's a lot more important for a woman to have some information on this point than it is to be a first and only love.

"Nor should I waste much time inquiring as to what He would do if he should have the misfortune to lose me. I'd have a pretty good line that he would do like every other man, and get over his heartache before you could say Jack Robinson. What I'd want to know was whether he thought enough of me while I was living to get up in the cold and make a fire, or walk the baby and do up the dishes if I happened to have the headache.

His Personal Appearance.

"Yes, I would make him swear that if I died he would never marry again. I'd make him take a Bible oath and sign an agreement before a notary public to take me in the theatre once a week without growling and grumbling and to send me a bunch of roses on my birthday, and not in his life to make that bonehead remark to him was diversion enough for any woman.

"And I'd wring from him a solemn promise to shave every day and not go about looking like a wandering Willie just because he had gotten married, for it's pretty hard for a woman to keep love's young dream in good working order when she has to get a peep at her husband's beard that is a three days' stubble, and a pile of baggy trousers, and a coat that isn't speaking terms with the presser and the cleaner.

"And I'd do some detective work to find out if my adored Romeo was one of the men who always hang their clothes up on the door and scatter newspapers from one end of the house to the other, and dribble cigar ashes over the rugs, and who think that the chief end of woman is to clean up and pick up after them.

"And I'd also try to discover whether the man I was proposing to marry was one of the amateur cooks who thinks he knows how to make a salad dressing and who is just a man with a chafing dish, while as for the man with a mother who made incomparable pies, he is simply out of the running as a possible husband.

"And I'd move heaven and earth to try to find out something about the real disposition of the man that I was undertaking to spend the next thirty or forty years with.

"I'd know that he couldn't always be on his p's and q's and that some day he would get careless and forget to wipe the peaches and cream that he was while he was courting me. That was his Sunday manners, but what I would desire to have would be a sample of his everyday manners.

"I'd try to find out if he was kind and sympathetic, and good natured, and with a sense of humor, or if he was one of the pesky sort who lead the AmuZzmented Hammer Slingers, and who batter the life out of those around them when anything goes wrong.

"And there is a lot more things I'd find out before ever I marched to the altar with another man, for, you see, those first two marriages were wise to the fact that just love of itself isn't enough to make one happy. Love has got to have something to feed on, or else it starves to death.

"And for that reason engaged couples should spend some of the time that they waste now in telling each other that they never loved before, and can never love again, in trying to find out just what sort of a party the party of the other part is."

A man gives his wife no better proof of his love for her than divvying up his coin with her.

The Towers of Notre Dame

Copyright, 1900, by D. Appleton & Co.

"O!" shrank Alice, and the woman, seeing her advantage, pursued it relentlessly. "Did you ever hear of a dole of beer? How do you know that your lover doesn't owe me such a debt and isn't paying now, down there?"

So biting were the words, so fierce the sneer, that Alice found herself wavering. After all she knew nothing of what had happened, nor could she be sure of Lloyd's riches. It was only the spoken of things in his life that he regretted.

Could it be that he was bound in honor to this rude woman in any case? As she stood irresolute, there came from below the sound of steps on the stairs, ascending steps, heavy and misery, then, distinctly the clatter of Valentine's wooden shoes, then another and a newer tread. The sacristan was coming.

"Here is your chance," taunted the lady; "give me up, denounce me and then receive what Lloyd will remember always—that when a distressed and helpless sister-woman came to you and trusted you, you showed her no pity, but deliberately wrecked her life."

Half sorry, half triumphant, but with out a word, Alice watched the torture of this former rival; and now the loud breathing of the sacristan was plainly heard on the stairs.

"Remember," flung out the other in a final defiance that was also a final appeal, "remember that nothing brought me here but the sacredness of a love that is gone, a sacredness that I respect and he respects but that you trample on."

There Valentine emerged from the tower door, followed wearily by Papa Bonneton, in full regalia, his mild face expressing all it could of severity.

"What has happened?" he said sharply to Alice. Then, with the habit of deference, he lifted his three-cornered hat to the lady. "Madame will understand that it was difficult for me to leave my duties."

The Bell of Notre Dame

Madame stood silent, ghastly white, hands clenched so hard that the gems cut into her flesh, eyes fixed on the girl in a last anguished supplication.

Then Alice said to the sacristan: "Madame has come to hear the sound of the great bell. She asked me to strike it with the hammer, but I told her that is forbidden during high mass. Madame offered you francs, twenty francs, she is going away and is very anxious to hear the bell; she has read about its beautiful tone. When Madame offered twenty francs I thought it my duty to let you know. I am with a self-possession that the daughters of Eve have acquired through centuries of practice.

"Twenty francs!" muttered the guileless Bonneton. "You were right, my child, perfectly right. That ringing of the bell is ordinary wishes, but with Madame it is different. I myself will strike the bell for Madame." And with a dignified bow he entered the southern tower, where the great bell hung, whispering: "Twenty francs! It is a miracle."

No sooner was he gone than the lady caught the girl's two hands in hers and, with her whole soul in her eyes, she cried: "God bless you! God bless you!"

Alice tried to speak but the words choked her and, leaning over the balustrade, she looked yearningly towards the tower, her lips moving in silence: "Lloyd! Lloyd!" Then the great bell struck and she turned with a start, brushing away tears that dimmed her eyes.

A moment later Papa Bonneton, reappeared scarcely believing that already he had earned his louis and insisting on telling Madame various things about the bell, that it was presented by Louis XIV., and weighed over seventeen tons, that eight men were required to ring it, two poised at each corner of the wooden framework, that the note it sounded was fa dieze. Did Madame understand that? Do, re, mi, fa? Then it was the sort of note Madame assured him that she was fully satisfied and would not keep him longer from his duties. Whereupon, with a torrent of thanks, the old man disappeared in the tower, looking unbelievingly at the gold piece in his hand.

"And now what?" asked Alice with feverish eagerness when they were alone again.

"Let me tell you first what you have saved the friend," said the lady, leaning weakly against the balustrade. A feeling of faintness had come over her in the reaction from her violent emotion.

"No," replied the girl "this is the time for action, not sentiment. You have promised to save him. Now do it."

"I will," declared the other, and the light of a fine, fierce purpose gave a dignity to her rather sullen beauty. "Or, rather, we will save him together. First, I want you to take this money, you will take it now for him? That's right; put it in your dress, Ah," she smiled as Alice obeyed her. "That is for a lawyer. He must have a good lawyer at once."

"Yes, of course," agreed Alice, "but how shall I get a lawyer?"

The lady frowned. "Ah, if I could only send you to my lawyer. But that would involve explanations. We need a man to advise us, some one who knows about these things."

"I have it," exclaimed Alice, joyfully. "The very person!"

"Who is that?"

"M. Coquenil!"

"Coquenil?" She Asked

"What?" stared the other. "You mean Paul Coquenil, the detective?"

"Yes," said the girl confidently. "He would help us, I'm sure of it."

"He is on the case already. Didn't you know that The papers are full of it." Alice shook her head. "That doesn't matter, does it? He would tell us exactly what to do. I saw him in Notre Dame only yesterday and—and he spoke to me so kindly. You know M. Coquenil is a friend of Papa Bonneton's. He lends him his dog Caesar to guard the church."

"It seems like Providence," murmured the lady. "Yes, that is the thing to do; you must go to M. Coquenil at once. Tell the old sacristan I have sent you on an errand—for another twenty francs."

"Now then," she dictated the following statement, which Alice took down carefully:

"Tell M. Kittredge that the lady who called for him in the carriage knows that the person he pursued thought guilty last night is NOT guilty. He knows this absolutely, so she will be able to appear and testify in favor of M. Kittredge if it becomes necessary. She begs M. Kittredge to use this money for a good lawyer."

CHAPTER XII.
By Special Order

IT was not until after vespers that Alice was able to leave Notre Dame and start for the Villa Montmorency. In fact, it was nearly 3 when, with mingled feelings of confidence and shrinking, she opened the iron gate in the ivy-covered wall of the villa, at once dignified and cheerful. Melanie came to the door and showed, by a jealous glance, that she did not approve of her master receiving visits from young and good looking females.

"M. Paul is resting," she grumbled, "He worked all last night, and he's worked the whole of this blessed day, until half an hour ago."

"I'm sorry, but it's a matter of great importance," urged the girl.

"Good, good!" snapped Melanie. "What name?"

"He wouldn't know my name. Please say it's the girl who sells candles in Notre Dame."

Advice to the Lovelorn

WANTS HIS PRESENTS BACK

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

During the past year I have been keeping company with a young woman of whom I thought a very great deal. I took her to many places of amusement and gave her presents. After a while she showed an inclination to sever our friendship, and as I did not want her to have the power to throw him down," I took the first chance, and our friendship has ceased. I do not want her to have any reminders of me. Have I the right to ask her to return anything that I have given her?

L. F. H.

MOST certainly not! The idea! Only Indians take back their gifts. It seems you have given her these things because of your interest in her, and she accepted them, showing that she must have had some regards for you. I have grave doubts as to whether you should have cut off the acquaintance as you did. Perhaps you did the girl a great injustice.

A PASSING FANCY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

For about ten months a young man has paid me a great deal of attention. We went to various places together, and finally he asked me to call. He failed to call but has since been very distant. At a dance recently we met, but he did not offer to go home with me. I like him very much. Do you think I ought to ask him what the matter is?

S. L.

Apparently the young man had just a passing fancy for you and you are probably well rid of such a fickle youth.

HEARTBROKEN AT 17

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of seventeen, and have been going with a young man one year by my senior for about a year. Recently I met him on the street and he did not notice me. I was with another young lady. I am heartbroken and don't know what to do.

A. L. M.

My, but you are an awfully young girl to be so broken hearted. As I understand it you were not engaged to the young man, and accordingly he has a perfect right to pay attentions to other young women. No doubt it is very unnerving to think that you are not the only girl to attract his attentions, but if he loves you he will be back all right, and if he doesn't, what would be the use anyway.

TRUE ELOQUENCE

THE lawyer for the plaintiff had finished his argument and asked the counsel for the defence stepped forward to speak. The judge, new to the bench and young for his station, interrupted him. His eyes were wide open and filled with wonder and admiration for the eloquent plea of the plaintiff.

"Defendant need not speak," he said; "plaintiff wins."

"But, your honor," said the attorney for the defendant, "at least let me present my case."

"Well, go ahead," said the judge, weakly.

The lawyer went ahead. When he had finished the judge gaped in even greater astonishment.

"Don't it beat all!" he exclaimed. "New defendant wins."

THOSE GIRLS.

"I AM in hard luck."

"How so?"

"Told Milly she was the first girl I ever took to the theatre without a chaperon, and she said she had no time to waste talking motorcoddles."

"Well?"

"When I told Amy that I thought I had loved many before I met her, she said the first thing in her, and she asked me if my proposal to her was the result of enforced taste or only a forlorn hope."

Society Will Ride to Hounds During Entire Week of Thanksgiving

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

Riding to hounds is still the most important of all diversions to the sport-loving fashionables and hunt runs, hunt breakfasts and hunt dinners still claim the attention of those who linger in the country.

Thanksgiving week promises much fine sport along this line and already house parties, horse shows and cross-country runs are being planned for that time. Last Thanksgiving time the week's hunt was participated in by twenty-four members of the Norfolk Hunt Club who were provided with thirty-two hunters and a mixed pack of American and English hounds numbering nine couples.

The country hunted was around Chatham and Eastham as far west as Hardwich, headquarters being established at Chatham. The same program will be carried out again this year, only on a larger scale, and both women and men are looking forward to the event with keenest anticipation.

Yesterday an entertainment in Forest Park was held at the kennels in Medford in compliment to the people over whose lands they have hunted. There were some eight hundred people at the luncheon.

The exercises commenced at 10:15 in the morning and kept up a lively pace until late in the afternoon. There were ten classes including the usual hound, pony, open air-horse show features with the addition of a farm-horse class.

The committee in charge consisted of Henry G. Vaughan, M. F. H., Robert Hopkins, William S. Patten and William L. Trask.

Mrs. Godfrey H. Hodgson, Mrs. Homer Loring, Mrs. Daniel F. Appel, Mrs. J. A. Barney, Mrs. George L. Osborne and Mrs. Francis R. Parker are the matrons for the smart Tuesday afternoon dances in Gardner Hall, Brookline. The initial of the series took place yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving McDowell Garfield have returned to their Beacon street residence from a visit with President Garfield of Williams College. They with Mrs. Garfield, wife of the late President, were guests of President Garfield for several days.

The friends of Miss Cornelia Wolcott are rejoicing over her speedy recovery from a severe attack of appendicitis. Miss Wolcott has been on the invalid list for several weeks, no sooner having recovered from a severe illness to her knee than she was taken with appendicitis.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Hamilton and family have returned from a Summer at Magnolia and are again at their town house on Newbury street for the season.

E. Royal Tyler of Boston, who is in New York stopping at the Belmont hotel, has been entertained considerately the past few days by Mr. and Mrs. Ten Eyck Wendell, Mrs. Wendell is a niece of Mr. Tyler.

Dr. Marshall L. Perrin of Wellesley, who is very well known here, has been elevated to membership in one of London's most eminent literary and academic circles, the Leodon Authors' Club. This distinction is conferred on Dr. Perrin because of his work in Anglo-Saxon and early English and because of his international reputation in educational and literary circles.

The late George Meredith was president of the club and some of its members at the present time are Anthony Hope, Pomeroy Bigelow, Hall Caine, Conan Doyle, and Maarten Maartens. Poultney Bigelow is one of the few Boston members of the club.

Mrs. John S. Barnes gave a farewell bridge party at Cold Brooke, her Berkshire residence, yesterday, and had many of her friends among the late stayers among her guests. Captain and Mrs. Barnes are leaving their country place on Friday and it will be closed for the Winter.

To-day Mrs. Henry Russell arrives in Boston, coming over from Paris to attend the inauguration of the New Opera House on Huntington avenue. Mrs. Russell is the wife of the director of the Boston Opera House and will be a most interesting addition to the host of art lovers who will assemble at the opening of the classic structure.

More than even the experienced traveler will Mrs. Russell be able to make comparisons between the opera houses in other countries and show true appreciation of the latest addition to the world's architecture.

The Misses Pastoul of Boston and Beverly Farms are having extensive outdoor improvements made in their country home this Autumn. The work is particularly in the line of the landscape architect and is being done early so that the effect will be attended by the time the Misses Pastoul will want to occupy the place next year.

Mrs. C. A. Munn and her daughter, Miss Carrie Munn, are again at their country home in Manchester and are planning to remain away from their town home until after Thanksgiving. Miss Gladys Munn is in school abroad and Hector Munn is traveling in Europe.

November 17 is that date which Mrs. Frank E. Peabody has chosen for the one she is to give at her Commonwealth avenue home in honor of her daughter, Miss Amy Peabody. The reception and tea will be from 4 to 6 in the afternoon.

The John Hays Hammonds have recently returned to their country home in Gloucester at Fresh Water Cove. They are to remain in Summer quarters until after Thanksgiving time if the weather continues favorable.

Mrs. William Wurts White, Jr., gave a luncheon yesterday at her home in Providence in honor of Miss Edith Waterman, who is today become the bride of Ralph Richardson of this city. The luncheon was served in a setting of bride's roses. Among those present were Miss Carolyn Grosvenor, Miss Virginia Sheldon, Miss Dorothy Peck, Miss Grace White and Miss Helen Cook. A number of friends and relatives of the bride people from Boston attended the wedding.

Richard C. Dixey and Miss Rosamond Dixey of Beacon street returned to Lenox last evening after a visit to Tuxedo Park. They will probably remain at Tanglewood, their Berkshire home, until quite late in October.

Frederick S. Taylor and his sister, Miss Ellen R. Taylor, of this city, have gone to their Berkshires for the Autumn. They are stopping at the Curtis Hotel in Lenox.

Many luncheon parties were given yesterday afternoon at the club house in Hot Springs, Virginia. Among the entertainers were Morton Nichols. Miss Margaret Chumney and Miss Georgia Carson were his principal guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw, Jr., have just opened their town house on Exeter street for the season. They have been in Philadphia for a short visit with Mrs. Shaw's father, Henry Pemberton, since they closed their country home at Pride's Crossing.

General and Mrs. James A. Frye have returned to their Winter home on Riverbank court after spending the Summer at their country home in New Hampshire.

Miss Margaret Fay of this city was entertained yesterday afternoon at an elaborate tea, which was given at Hot Springs.

Miss Maud K. Wetmore, sister of Senator George Peabody Wetmore, has just returned from Europe, where she has been making a short visit. She went over with a party of friends a short time ago.

Boston has given another young society matron to New York this year, for the Arthur C. Blagdens have decided to make their home in New York and will soon be established in a town house there. At present they are visiting Mr. Blagden's mother, Mrs. Samuel P. Blagden, at her home on East Tenth street. Young Mrs. Blagden was Miss Lydia Mason Jones and is the daughter of Mrs. Arthur Mason Jones. Mr. Blagden is a Harvard University man and took his bride at the close of his university course.

Miss Adele Thayer has opened her house on Commonwealth avenue, having just returned from a visit to Providence where she was entertained by friends. Miss Thayer spent the greater part of the Summer in West Manchester this year.

General and Mrs. Edgar R. Champlin have decided to spend the Winter in Europe, and will probably sail shortly.

☆ Song of the Open ☆

By SARA HAMILTON BIRCHALL

THERE'S a whisper in the orchard, there's a laughter in the breeze,
There's a catbird's chuckle in the maple tree;
And the wind has come from westward, scattering the maple-keys.
Oh, it's time to break your fetters and be free!

All the rain's astir and calling, all the grass is wet and brown,
All the world waits just beyond the window pane;
And the day is dull and dripping in the gray, gas-lighted town—
But the country's fresh and clean with Fall again.

Oh, it's out along the prairie, with the cool rain in your face,
And it's out across the river flowing free.
And it's out across the hilltops in a flying-footed race,
With just your heart to bear you company.

There's the prairie curving softly, with its golden blooms aglow,
And the purple splashes on its ripened flanks;
And the title grassy hollows, where the brilliant salvias grow.
And the sturdy cat-tails marshal out their ranks.

Ah, the scarlet of the orchards, and the saffron of the fields!
Ah, the purple of the vineyards in the sun!
Ah, the river in the sunlight, flashing silver as a shield
For a moment—and your Indian Summer's done.

So it's home along the prairie, with the north wind blowing chill,
And it's home across the meadow's heaving sea,
And it's home with Winter shouting just beyond the farthest hill,
But yet the road is open and is free.

How to Dance the "Acronette"

THE "Acronette" or acroplane dance is the up-to-date dance this season. It originated in France, and some of the American dancing masters are teaching it to their pupils.

Here is the correct method of dancing the acronette, as described by the inventor:

1. The acroplane goes quickly over the ground while gaining speed for the ascent. The dancers, with arms outstretched, bend slightly forward and gallop six steps.

2. The acroplane poises lightly and goes off into the air.

The dancers raise the arms first on one side, then on the other, while raising and bending the knees and taking two steps; this is the balance of the planes; now make six turns ("Boston" step), then balance for two steps and take six turns of the "Boston" again. Repeat this six times.

The movements should be very smooth, suggesting the skimming through the air, and balance of body, arms and feet in perfect unison. A single jerk will spoil the whole illusion.

3. Descent of the acroplane.

The last movement of the dance is a slow gliding forward, the bodies bent forward, the hands imcumpsed pointing toward the ground in front and raised at the back. Six steps are taken in this position and the dance is over. It is the second movement which, like the flight of the acroplane, can be continued as long as is desired.

To-Day's Best Story

THE other day a gentleman with decided tendencies towards looking after everybody's business but his own, saw a furniture removal van being loaded near his house.

"I say, carter," he said bumptiously, "are the people upstairs moving?"

The carter looked at him scornfully, and, wiping the perspiration from his manly brow, he replied:

"No, sir; we're just taking the furniture out for a drive."

SMILES

"So he refused to let you marry his daughter?"

"No; but he imposed conditions that I cannot comply with."

"What are they?"

"Said I'd have to go to work first."

"Do you get out of life all there is in it?" inquired the optimist.

"Naw," replied the pessimist. "There's plenty of money in circulation that I can't seem to annex."

"He has me puzzled," replied the other. "I can't decide whether he is simply illiterate or a spelling reformer in advance of his time."

Joyous Days of Autumn in New England

By MICHAEL FAIRLESS

AUTUMN is here and it is already late. He has painted the hedges russet and gold, scarlet and black, and a tangle of gray; now he has damp brown leaves in his hair and frost in his finger-tips.

It is the season of contrasts; at first all is stir and bustle, the lengthening of man and beast; barn and rickyard stand filled with golden treasure; at the farm the sound of threshing; in the wood and copse the squirrels hasted their nuts and store house, while the ripe nuts fall with thud of thunder rain.

When the harvesting is over, the fruit gathered, the last rick thatched, there comes a pause. Earth strips off her bright colors and shows a bare and furrowed face; the dead leaves fall gently and sadly through the calm, sweet air; gray mists drape the dales and hedges.

The migratory birds have left, save for a few late swallows; and through the soft still rain can be heard the blackbird's melancholy trill and the ditty pipe of the redbreast's Winter song—the air is full of the sound of the farewell. From the Westminster.

NO CHANCE TO EXERCISE.

TWO men whose offices were on the second floor were on the first floor waiting for an elevator.

"You're not looking extra well, Lansdell," remarked the lawyer.

"No, Knagle," replied the real estate man. "Think I'll join an athletic club. I need the exercise."

"Me, too."

Still they waited for the elevator.

I'm Looking for My Lassie

By John A. Moroso

I'M looking for my lassie, sir, a sit'm bit of a lassie, sir,
Her hair is gold with the kiss o' the sun,
And her eyes bright smile for every one—
My lassie, sir; a bit of a girl, a wee, slim bit of a lassie, sir.

No other bairn was given to me. This bonny, cheery lassie, sir,
Was life and death to her mither dear,
And sweeter and brighter than heaven fair
My baby was; just a sweet, young thing, a tender bit of a lassie, sir.

And haven't you seen my little girl? She left me word she'd come this way
To win her fortune and gather the fame
That would make the country ring with her name;
She'd be a great, fine actress, sir; she wrote me that, my Mary dear.

Her bed is sweet with the lavender's scent and waits for her, my lassie, sir;
The curtains of scrim are crisp and fair—
O, I want to take her away from here!
The people are strange and I feel afraid of my lass, my lass, my lassie.

Her father's dead these ten long years and is waiting the bairn and me,
And he kissed her baby lips good bye
As he trusted her to me, and I
Am asking you, sir, if you've heard of her and if you'll comfort me?

It's a great big town and I'm old and gray and I seek my only lass,
And I beg the drama to stand the loss
Of an only child and a mother's cross
And give my bairn to me, my lass, my only lass, my flesh and bone, to me.

WARNING.

Tom—Is Miss Oldgirl superstitious?

Dick—Yes; but I think she'd take a chance on a Friday proposal.

MERELY TRANSPOSED.

A speed scout in his feet at a supper one other night, cleared his throat and began: "It's sir, it is now my—pleasant duty to propose the host of the feast and the hostess."

AMERICAN IS THANKED BY Y. M. C. A.

The following letter of appreciation of the work done by the BOSTON AMERICAN in the campaign to raise $500,000 for the new Y. M. C. A. building, which has just been successfully closed, was received to-day:

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The Boston Young Men's Christian Association desires to express its very great appreciation and sincere gratitude for the generous and consistent support given by the AMERICAN throughout the entire building fund campaign.

Without this essential assistance of the press we could not have brought the appeal of the association so effectively before the public that was so necessary to achieve the result attained last night.

The prominence of display and liberality of space indicated great sacrifice on your part, and the editorial support has been unsurpassed in any other city movement that the people of Boston have been asked to help.

With renewed thanks and gratitude that we may have the continued cooperation in the future that we have had in the past, we remain,

Very truly yours,

ARTHUR S. JOHNSON,
President;

WILLIAM A. GASTON,
Chairman Citizens' Committee;
GEORGE W. MEHAFFEY,
General Secretary.

Having succeeded in the $500,000 fund campaign for the Boston Y. M. C. A., International Secretary Ward will at once take up the work of raising another half million in the environs of Boston. Newton there will be a ten-day campaign to raise $150,000, a similar campaign in Cambridge and campaigns for smaller amounts in Chelsea, Beverly, Lawrence and Lowell.

After completing his work in this State Mr. Ward will go South and will take up the work of assisting the branches of the institution in Atlanta, Birmingham and Louisville.

TEL WEDDING AT THEIR "TIN SHOWER"

Boston, Lynn and Scranton, Pa., friends of Miss Estelle Birmingham and Frank S. Hughes are to-day trying to recover from surprise upon learning that the couple were married six months ago. Miss Birmingham is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Birmingham of No. 72 Franklin street, Lynn. Hughes is of Scranton man. For some time they have both been at the Hotel Touraine Tea Agency in Boston.

Last Friday night Mrs. Hughes (they thought she was Miss Birmingham) had a "tin shower" in her old home in Lynn. Of course, Mr. Hughes was there. When the merriment was at its height they announced their marriage.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

Absence of any sensational movement in the market is a most encouraging feature.

$

Holders of securities continue to show faith in ultimately higher prices.

$ $ $

The market is now divided between investment holders and a large short interest.

$ $ $

All reports from business centres are extremely optimistic.

$ $ $

Various traffic officials who have just returned from extended trips through the West, show a remarkable unanimity in declaring that the general business depression throughout that territory has never appeared better.

$ $ $

England has really been a buyer of stocks recently instead of a seller. The buying has been small, but it shows the state of British sentiment. That there was some selling a couple of weeks ago is not to be denied, but it was not important and stocks sold by speculators have gone into strong hands.

$ $ $

State Street has been told of the large consignments of cotton being shipped to America from Europe, but the floating supply of stocks in the "Street" has not increased.

$ $ $

It seems strange that any section of the State Street community should obstinately refuse to accept these proofs, but of course the market is the healthier for having in it a good sized short interest.

$ $ $

The active management of the Vanderbilt lines is continued into 1910. It is to be far and away the busiest year in the history of the railroads. Irrespective of how to handle the traffic are not limited to the purchase of $25,000,000 worth of equipment. Present indications are that next year will see more construction work accomplished than perhaps any similar period in a decade.

$ $ $

With the possible exception of a few western roads, the New York Central lines are leading the country in the recovery of traffic. Car loading is running steadily in excess of the best part of 1907, operating expenses are lower despite heavier outlay on maintenance, and net earnings are increasing at such a rate as to make the increase of fixed charges thus far a negligible matter.

$ $ $

The western railroads continue to gain in traffic, and as this month the tonnage of most of the roads has seldom been equalled.

$ $ $

The railroads were pretty well prepared to handle a Big Crop. They have also been able to curtail expenses to a greater extent with a similar volume of business.

$ $ $

Nevada Consolidated Copper Company stockholders voted to increase the capital stock of the company from 15,000,000 to a total up to 2,000,000 shares. The new stock is to be issued to acquire the Nevada Cumberland Ely on the basis of one share of Nevada Consolidated for three and one-quarter shares of Cumberland Ely. Murry Guggenheim was elected to the Board of Directors to succeed John K. MacIlvaine. The board will meet for organization in a day or two.

$ $ $

Charles Hayden and Hayden, Stone & Co. leaves to-day to inspect properties in which the firm is interested, including the Utah Copper, Nevada Consolidated, Ray, Gila, Miami, Chino and United States Sugar & Land properties.

$ $ $

American Smelting has declared a quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on A and 1¼ per cent. on B preferred.

STATE STREET LOCAL LEADER

STATE STREET, Nov. 3.—Continued strength of Amalgamated Copper stock was the feature this forenoon. It did not bring any buying in the copper share list, however, and the result was that the market was dull and steady.

Copper warrants had a sharp advance in London yesterday, which accounts in part for the strength of Amalgamated. It is worthy of note that electrolytic copper was sold there for the basis of 12.70 cents per pound for October and 13.03 cents for Lake, which is about the lowest of any month this year.

Amalgamated rose from 86⅝ to 87½ up to the noon hour. North Butte was also a trifle firmer, advancing to 58⅝. Butte Coalition rose to 29¼. Gossip now tells again of consolidation of these two companies and the possibility of Greene-Cananea, together with Utah Consolidated, together with Giroux, being included in such a combination. Nipissing was heavy in sympathy with the weakness of La Rose on the curb. Steel shares were heavy.

Trading on the curb was of fair volume with La Rose and Boston & Ely the special features. The latter broke from 6⅝ to 5 1-16 on large trading. Heavy offerings were made by wire houses. Boston & Ely stiffened to 40. Prices on the curb were generally strong.

BEECKMAN IS AGAIN CHOSEN IN NEWPORT

NEWPORT, Nov. 3.—Interest in the election here was intense because Representative R. Livingston Beeckman was again a candidate for the House. He received Representative Beeckman, polo player and society man, having done much for Newport, was a favorite, and the re-election was no surprise. Commodore Elbridge T. Gerry and his son, Robert Livingston Gerry, were among the earliest voters at the polls, coming from New York to cast their ballots.

STOCKS SHOW LIVELY RALLY

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Stocks opened better to-day and then almost immediately lost their gains. The selling movement was short-lived and a quite rally followed. The result was that early in the day nearly all stocks on the list showed advances over the closing prices of Monday. Amalgamated was the strong feature, advancing one point in the early trading and showing great activity. Further talk was heard of a community of interests among producers.

In London, American stocks were narrow, apparently waiting for New York to begin trading. Consols were weaker. Conservative brokers are of the opinion that a period of irregularity is at hand.

On the curb market La Rose stocks created much excitement by breaking $1.50 a share. The latter broke from 6⅝ to 5 1-16 on large trading. Heavy offerings were made by wire houses. Boston & Ely stiffened to 40. Prices on the curb were generally strong.

WAIT! BEAUMONT ST. TO BE HIBBARD ST.

There is rejoicing in Beaumont street, Dorchester. Beaumont street is in the Ashmont district, running from Carruth to Adams street. It also enjoys the proud distinction of holding the residence of Robert Hibbard, and they say its going to be Hibbard street soon. Now, Beaumont street citizens have long claimed that it was little better than a cowpath, with mud ankle deep in wet weather and no curbings upholding the alleged sidewalk. Now it has come to pass that Beaumont street is being macadamized, curbed and it is more things. So why not Hibbard street.

MANSFIELD, Nov. 3.—Besides Vahey-Foss sentiment a number of things were stirred up here.

Toads were hopping in the back yards here, and an honest workman who came up on a freight from Walpole said that he had seen robins were back, turtles were seen and a man killed a snake.

A Stinging Rebuke To Republican Bosses

The slashing the Republican bosses received at the polls yesterday means only one thing, and that is that the people have tired of Lodge's outrageous domination of the party.

Lodge has carried the Republican party of Massachusetts in his vest pocket for years.

He has always acted as suited his fancy, AND HIS REFUSAL to allow a discussion of the tariff and the income tax amendment in the campaign until FORCED TO DO SO by his opponents, proves that the Republican voters are not satisfied with the tariff, and that they are ready for the adoption of the income tax amendment.

The Republican majority is the SMALLEST IN THE HISTORY of the party. Instead of the usual magnificent vote for the Republican candidates, the day ended in almost a complete rout.

The Republican voters are tired of Lodge. They are tired of having him do THEIR THINKING for them. They are tired of being led by the nose. They are weary of one man domination.

Draper goes back to office perhaps for the last time. The Republican voters will watch his actions carefully. And they will watch, too, as they never watched before, THE FREEBOOTERS AND BANDITS who have been making laws in the State House.

The Democratic candidates, Messrs. Vahey and Foss made a SPLENDID FIGHT. They compelled a discussion of the tariff and the income tax amendment. They not only held the Democratic vote of last year but increased it.

The election of Joseph C. Pelletier, as District-Attorney, was also a rebuke to the bosses. Mr. Hill, as the American said last Saturday, is ONLY A COG in the Republican machine.

The voters refused to reward the good work he has done while in office because they recognized the fact that he is holding the office chiefly because he is a cog in the Lodge-Draper machine, and they do not approve of making PARTY FEALTY a test for the great office of District Attorney.

Mr. Pelletier, the successful candidate, is a man of excellent qualities. He has an enviable record. He ought to make a splendid District Attorney.

And there is NEED JUST NOW, as never before, for a strong, vigorous man in that office.

The charges made by scores of reputable citizens against Police Commissioner O'Meara's Police System should be thoroughly investigated by the Grand Jury.

These charges are specific. The evidence to substantiate them is abundant. They are true or they are not true.

Mr. Pelletier can easily find out. He HAS THE POWER to do so. He is the chief law officer of the county. He can compel the attendance of O'Meara and his associates before a grand jury. He can get at all the facts.

And THE PUBLIC wants to know all the facts. For several months O'Meara has been hiding behind the Republican "machine." He is safe there. He can talk arrogantly and act defiantly.

With a Democratic District Attorney in office he should be MADE TO UNDERSTAND that he is only a servant of the people, and that he is responsible to them.

When ministers of the gospel in their pulpits openly accuse O'Meara, the police situation becomes a GRAVE SCANDAL.

It is too early to say anything about the probable success or failure of Plan Two. It will be given a fair chance. Everybody will be in favor of it, if it affords only half the relief to the city that its sponsors claim for it.

Perhaps a small City Council of nine instead of thirty-six, may work out satisfactorily, but it seems doubtful. Many wards will be unrepresented in the Council.

The opportunities for GRAFT AND CROOKEDNESS are greater in a small body of nine, with five members making a majority, than it is in a body of thirty-six, in which there is certain to be some honest and decent men who could not be persuaded to do wrong either by promises or pay.

Big Conclusions from Small Premises

A New York professor of music has been regaling the London public with a few ill-tempered reflections on the musical taste of Americans. He pictures us more or less barbarians in our love for ragtime, our "pose" as people of discrimination, and our passion for celebrities.

The obvious conclusion of all this being that it relieves the disordered mind of the professor, amuses the Londoners to whom he is talking, and does not really hurt Americans.

The fact is that we have been hearing this sort of atrabilious comment since Victor Capoul wrote home to Paris thirty-five years ago—"the Americans know nothing of art, la la." We lived through it then; we shall survive it now.

In art, as in everything else, no country since the beginning of time has progressed so astonishingly as America. This blunt statement of fact needs no attempt at verification for anybody in any degree conversant with America, its people and its accomplishments. America is not yet the art centre of the world. It makes no such pretensions. It is willing to be recognized for the honest position it occupies, for the advancement it has made, for what it has given to art, for what it has encouraged in art.

It takes a good many kinds of people to make up a population of one hundred million in little over a century. And it takes something more than a professor squatted down in New York, or a foreign singer popping hurriedly from one night stand to another, to draw learned deductions of the national taste, progress and cultivation.

It is generally conceded that the Boston American has a greater circulation than all the other Boston evening papers combined, and that it is as strong in Boston in the evening field as, for example, a paper of the combined strength of the Evening Journal and Evening World would be in New York city, or the Evening American and Evening News in Chicago.—Advertisers' Magazine.

Too High a Price for Football 'Glory'

The Unnecessary Killing at West Point and the Lesson It Should Teach

That a young man of good fighting blood should be lost to the American army because he played in a football game is a fine argument for abolishing college football altogether if it cannot be deprived of its brutality.

Football, it is argued, makes men. But it apparently also makes victims, and our army needs all the strong, intelligent youngsters it can get. Victims will be supplied with pitiful abundance in the event of war.

It is a credit to the superintendent of West Point that he has called off the remaining games scheduled because of the death of young Byrne.

It would be creditable to the authorities of the other colleges if they, too, would profit by this tragedy and forbid any more football games till they can be assured that by indulging in them no student need risk his life.

It is important to teach boys intended for the army how to fight, but it is utterly unnecessary to teach them how to die until an opportunity comes for them to die for their country.

The young man whose neck was broken in a "scrimmage" must have been in excellent physical condition, or he never would have been admitted to the military academy, much less to the football team.

He was above the average in height, strength and endurance, and nothing short of unwarranted violence could have cost him his life.

But in the rush of the opposing teams, every member of which was far more eager to win for his college than to safeguard his life or anybody else's, he was trampled down, and when he was carried off the field he was dying.

More than twenty-one years the parents of that boy had been busy with his bringing up and education. It was a matter of triumph for them when he got his appointment to West Point. They felt that now his future was secure. The government would give him a good education and turn him out a fine soldier.

They trusted to his fighting blood to "make good" if ever the opportunity arose.

The whole country will sympathize with them in their sorrow, and a large part of the country will, or ought to, share their indignation at the brutality which cost him his life.

The young American who is willing to serve his country, "even at the cannon's mouth," and who joins the army knowing that he may be called upon to sacrifice his life, has a right to protection, at least until the hour of battle.

It is foolish and criminal to allow college boys to engage in games that are only to be won by jeopardy of life or limb. The "glory" of the football hero is won at a pretty dear price when it costs a brother student his life, or when it results in permanent injury to any one taking part in the game.

After an energetic investigation into the circumstances of young Byrne's death it is the duty of the superintendent of the military academy to take steps to make football as safe as baseball, tennis or any other college sport, or to abolish it from the academy forever.

And there is no other college in the country so great or so small that it can afford not to take exactly the same steps to safeguard the lives of its own athletic undergraduates.
